What a World!
5 Billions More?
First He Sang a Hymn
Have You Any Toggenburgs?

Rioting between Hindus and Mohammedans is spreading in India, much shooting, thousands arrested.

In China, thousands flee from the rising floods of the Yellow river that occasionally picks out a new path to the sea, drowns many, wipes out villages on its way.

A German newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, says Catholics in Germany are "public enemy number one." Catholic youth organizations are banned.

Anti-Semitic riots broke out again in Berlin. Jews are forbidden to use the public baths at Stettin. Official explanation: "Jewish men molested blonde German women and girls."

In New York, three men with no particular prejudice, hatreds or opinions, simply tired of living, jumped off ferry boats into the North river, and drowned.

A man from Mars, looking at us, might say, not knowing that suicide is a sin: "I wonder why they all stay on such a world."

Senator Borah, one of the Senate's able men, predicts that Congress will sit until November 1, and that five thousand, one hundred and twenty millions more will be appropriated for immediate spending. That would make about an even ten billions in extra appropriations for this year.

Two billion one hundred and twenty millions of the money would pay the soldiers' bonus in "greenbacks," and three billion would be used to take up mortgages on farms.

If the government does decide to "put out" five billion more dollars, let us hope it will not insist on interest-bearing bonds that would increase the ultimate debt by 100 per cent, without necessity.

Our government bonds, with no gold back of them, no limit to their amount, represents true inflation. Why insist on doubling the taxpayers' load by inflation plus interest?

Newell P. Sherman, choir singer, Boy Scout master, who fell in love with a girl sixteen, admits that to make his way clear he upset a canoe, throwing the mother of his two children into the water, kept pushing her away from the boat until she sank and drowned. This young gentleman is six feet four inches tall, but the electric chair can doubtless be arranged to fit him.

You will hope that no tender-hearted parole board will say, "He ought to have another chance." One chance to drown the mother of your two children seems enough.

Interesting touch. The murderer of his young wife, sobbing appropriately, told how he sang a lymn to the mother of his children, just before drowning her. He has a beautiful voice.

The idea of drowning her came to him while he was singing the hymn. What hymn could it have been?

A lady wishes to experiment raising Toggenburg goats in New York's Catskills. She thinks thousands of high acres now idle could be made useful with goats, in those beautiful mountains. The lady wants "the kind you can milk, that have kids good to eat"; also wants to know whether the males would defend the females and kids from dogs, or must the fence be "dog tight." If you know about such goats, write to Mrs. C., in care of A. Brisbane, 220 South street, New York city.

P. S.—The lady will listen to reason if you think you know a better goat than the Toggenburg for the Catskill Mountains. Perhaps A. D. White, of Swift and Company, has goats for sale. Mention price F. O. B., Pine Hill, N. Y.

Rome reports Fascist excitement because "Japan assumes the role of Abyssinian champion."

Mussolini's press says Japan sets herself up as leader of Asiatic and African peoples, "against the civilisation and culture of the white race."

A Fascist newspaper calls Japan "The enemy of Europe and America, dreaming of world conquest. That seems to be a keg of powder with only a spark lacking.

There is a general strike in Terre Haute, thousands involved in a walkout, not authorized by their labor leaders, a food crisis threatening.

In a government building program in New York city, with union men holding key positions, it is feared all work may be held up by strikes, full union wages being demanded wherever union men work.

If that happens it will mean 100,000 men out of jobs, men not members of unions that would take the pay offered, gladly.

Yankee Stadium, New York, July 23 — The opening of the crucial American League series between the Yanks and the Detroit Tigers here this afternoon took on all appearances of a world's series struggle as 60,000 fans jammed the Stadium for a twin bill.

Schoolboy Rowe opposed Johnny Allen.

Hostilities started off with a terrific thump in the very first inning when Mickey Cochrane slashed out a home run and Hank Greenburg followed with his 27th circuit drive of the year.

However the Yankees came roaring back when Lou Gehrig picked one in the same inning to score a home run with one on and tie the count.

El Removal Hits Snag

By International News Service

Washington, July 23—Removal of the Boston Elevated Railway, and construction of a subway for that city as a work relief project under the $4,000,000,000 program, was given a setback today by PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

"It seems that the project would take a long time and would not be in our province under this act," Ickes said.

The Boston project is part of a program considered by Governor Curley. The limitation of projects to one year under the work relief program is understood to have resulted in an adverse decision from the works relief advisory committee on allotments, of which Ickes is chairman.

Heat claimed one drowning victim today as the mercury soared upward.

Francis Dunn, 16, of Imrie road, Allston, was pronounced dead after lifeguards, Metropolitan police, Cambridge firemen and a doctor worked over his prosprate form for more than an hour.

He and two other youths were in a boat off Magazine beach, Cambridge, when one of them dropped an oar.

Francis dived after it. He did not com up. His companions could not swim. They paddled ashore with the remaining oar, calling for help.

BRINGS BODY ASHORE

Lifeguard Thomas J. Mann swam to the spot, about 70 feet above Cottage Farm Bridge. He carried the body to the surface and their to the beach.

Dr. Maurice S. Duchin of Magazine street, Cambridge, supervised efforts to restore life to the boy.

The Rev. Patrick Qwill of Blessed Sacrament Church, Cambridge, administered last rites of the Catholic church.

Hope of saving Dunn was given up only after the Cambridge fire department rescue squad of five worked for an hour with a pulmotor.

HUMIDITY GROWS

The readings dropped from 74 at midnight to 72 at 6 a. m. and, from there, bounced 8 degrees upward by 9 o'clock and another 8 degrees to 88 at 2 p. m.

"Oppressive warmth"—in the weatherman's words—will continue tonight and tomrrow morning with no relief before tomorrow night.

Girl in Offer to Aid State

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

Whitinsville, July 23—Buxom Esther Magill, for love of whom Newell P. Sherman claims he murdered his wife, announced today that she would testify for the state against Sutton's "model youth."

Dark-eyed and dark-haired pretty Esther spurned him again today, branding as "vicious lies" any contemplation of matrimony between them.

"Wanted me? Planned to marry me?"

Contemptuously she reflected on the schoolboy confession of a giant hulk of a man.

"Why he never had me! How did he ever expect to get me? He knew I wouldn't marry him.

"When he asked me if I would marry him if he got rid of his wife, I told him just what I

'I Want to Die!' Begs Killer

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

Worcester, July 23—Raving in his cell, Newell Sherman today begged for a chance to attend the funeral of the wife he had drowned, and begged for death himself.

"I want to die . . . please! I want to die!" he screamed.

Flinging his huge bulk on the cell cot, he tore at his hair and moaned when told he could not be allowed to go to the funeral, even under heavy guard.

When food was brought he saidz "I can't eat. Bring me water."

A doctor administered a sedative and a guard was stationed at the cell door as a precaution against an attempt at suicide.

And meanwhile the state police continuing their investigation of

THE TWO ROOSEVELTS

A Hypothetical Dialogue

PRES. ROOSEVELT in an interview with GOV. ROOSEVELT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT: In the budget message of last year I said, speaking of the fiscal year 1936, that we should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek to have a continued reduction of the public debt . . . It is evident that we have not yet reached a point at which a complete balance of the budget can be obtained.

(Message to Congress, January 7, 1935.)

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT: The way we DO things, not the way we SAY things, is nearly always the measure of our sincerity.

(Speech at Butte, Montana, September 19, 1932.)

My sincere and profound wishes, Mr. President, for your continued good health; but, like the insistent ghost of Julius Caesar, who said he would see Brutus at Philippi, WE shall meet again in November, 1936.

Won Sweeps, Put in Jail

Whatever became of that fellow Virgil Dewey Mahn—you remember—the Missourian who won $50,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes awhile back?

Well—Virgil sailed into Boston today aboard the American Hampton Roads liner steamer Quaker City, from Manchester.

And he was flat broke.

He told immigration officials he had won the money all right, and got the check. But British authorities put him in jail when they learned of his good luck—all because it isn't legal to play the sweepstakes in England.

They took the check. They fined him 160 pounds about $800. Now Virgil's planning to go back to Missouri.

ARTIST SKETCHES MAJOR INCIDENTS IN SUTTON TRAGEDY

SHERMAN LEFT HIS HOME SATURDAY MORNING TO MAKE CERTAIN HE WOULD HAVE A CANOE THAT NIGHT. HE HAD FIRST SELECTED THURSDAY NIGHT FOR THE "DEATH RIDE" BUT ALL THE CANOES WERE TAKEN.. RAIN INTERFERED WITH HIS PLANS, FOR FRIDAY NIGHT!"

Mrs. ALICE P. SHERMAN

HE RETURNED HOME. AFTER SUPPER HE PLAYED WITH THE TWO CHILDREN WITH MORE ENTHUSIASM THAN HE HAD EVER SHOWN BEFORE. HE THEN ATTENDED A REHEARSAL OF THE CHOIR AT THE SUTTON CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH—AND EVEN AS HE SANG HYMNS HE WAS PLANNING TO CARRY OUT HIS DEATH PACT AGAINST HIS WIFE.

THE REHEARSAL OVER THE COUPLE MOTORED TO THE LAKE. THE CANOE KEEPER HAD KEPT HIS PROMISE TO HAVE THE CRAFT READY. IT WAS JUST 10:05 O'CLOCK WHEN THEY STEPPED INTO THE CANOE TO BEGIN THE DEATH TRIP. SHERMAN PADDLED ACROSS THE LAKE, AND CAME ASHORE ON HIS FATHER'S PROPERTY WHERE THEY REMAINED FOR SOME TIME.

PUTTING THE CANOE BACK IN THE WATER THEY RESUMED THEIR RIDE. PADDLING TO A SPOT 300 FEET FROM SHORE SHERMAN TIPPED THE CANOE, KNOWING THAT HIS WIFE COULD NOT SWIM A STROKE. IN HIS REPORTED CONFESSION SHERMAN SAID, "FOR A MOMENT I WANTED TO SAVE HER. BUT I CHANGED MY MIND. .... I WANTED HER DEAD....."

"—I GAVE MY SHOULDER A HARD TWIST AND SHE LET GO OF IT... I SWAM AWAY FOR A FEW FEET... THEN I TURNED BACK... TO SEE IF SHE WOULD COME UP. WHEN THE BUBBLES DISAPPEARED I KNEW SHE WAS DOWN TO STAY... I THEN STRUCK OUT TO SAVE THE CANOE."

NEWELL P. SHERMAN

SHERMAN SWAM WITH THE CANOE AND BROUGHT IT TO SHORE. HE THEN RAN UP TO A CAMP AND TRIED TO AROUSE SOMEBODY BUT "THEY DIDN'T HEAR." HE THEN WENT OVER TO HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S HOUSE, AND TOLD HIM OF HIS ACCIDENT

'KILL ME QUICKLY!' PLEADS AMERICAN TRAGEDY SLAYER

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

the "American Tragedy" drowning for fear Sherman will eventually retract his admissions and change his mind about wanting death, found an important new witness.

A man, a woman and two children heard the blood-curdling screams of Alice Sherman as her husband drowned her Saturday night in Lake Singletary.

"Blood-curdling" is the word used by Edward Ludvigson, Millbury jeweler, when he told about it.

Police said Ludvigson's story opened up the possibility of strangulation.

They will question Sherman about this theory, too.

CHOKED OR GAGGED

The question is:

"Was she choked or were her screams silenced by a huge hand?"

Ludvigson said it sounded like one or the other.

The jeweler's wife refused to let him go to the dying woman's aid. She had her own family to think of and they could not be sure what was happening.

Ludvigson may be the most important witness at Sherman's trial which today was tentatively set for September 3.

He told a reporter:

"My wife and I, and our boy, Roy, who is 10 years old, and our niece, Rosalie Dilo, arrived at my camp on Lake Singletary about 10:30 Saturday night.

5 PIERCING SCREAMS

"I got out of the auto with my flash-light but the light wouldn't work and I was trying to fix it when we were startled by a piercing shriek from the lake, a woman's schriek.

"It seemed only about 100 feet away, but it was foggy and we couldn't see a thing.

"We first thought it was somebody fooling, some night bathers, but the stream came again. I got the impression the woman was trying to shout something, not just 'help.'

"She kept screaming, but each scream would be shut off gradually and then came on again with a great burst of sound. What I really thought then was that she was being attacked.

"As I remember it, there were five distinct screams.

"The last scream was the most blood-curdling of all. She seemed starting to say, 'Oh,' then it stopped. Everything became silent.

STARTED TO RESCUE

"After the third scream I said, 'I'm going out there and see what is going on.' I started toward my boat but my wife said, 'You stay here. It is none of your business. You don't know who's out there. If anything has happened I don't want Roy to be dreaming it tonight.'

"We finally concluded somebody was fooling, called on the troopers came and we found out a woman was drowned."

What would have happened if the Millbury jeweler had gone out and surprised the slayer in his crime is for anybody to conjecture. Sherman's weight and strength make him more than a match for most men.

Sherman, in his story of the drowning, said his wife screamed only once.

Jail guards said the bulky prisoner, a Tarzan in physique, who would be all they could handle if he wished to cause trouble, appeared completely crushed physically by realization of the crime.

They said he wants to be sentenced to death in the electric chair as soon as possible, to end his anguish.

He raved at the law which forbids acceptance of a guilty plea.

He would like to emulate the action of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, choir leader minister, who pleaded guilty and accepted the death penalty before completion of his trial for the murder of Avis Linnell.

"What is the use of going through all this court trial? I know what is going to happen to me. I would rather have it over with. I wish they would let me plead guilty," he told jailers today.

PLAN DEFENSE

Even if it were possible for the choir singing scoutmaster to have his wish gratified, his relatives and friends, especially his loyal father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sherman, have a different idea.

The parents of Newell Sherman are ready to begin a real life and death battle to save their "baby" boy from the electric chair.

Sherman will go on trial September 3, unless a change is necessary, Assistant District Attorney Alfred B. Canedella said today. The case will be submitted to the grand jury in Fitchburg in August.

There is no chance of a change of venue, Canedella said.

In his cell, Sherman, who declares that the first sin he ever committed was the slaying of his wife, and of his two children, was reported on the verge of collapse.

Sunday night he had slept soundly in the Grafton State Police barracks.

Last night he didn't sleep at all. The giant wife-killer—he is six feet, four inches tall and weighs 240 pounds—was weeping and crying loudly throughout the night.

Time after time he shouted, "If I could only die. I want to die."

He had finally fully realized the real seriousness of his first sin.

So fearful were jail guards that his expressed desire to die might lead him to commit suicide, that a 24-hour guard has been placed in front of his cell and wooden spoons have been given to him to use during meal times.

Today state police were completing their investigation of the strange "American Tragedy."

It was learned they were attempting to determine whether Sherman was not a man of only two loves, love for his wife and imaginary love for Esther Magill, 17-year-old Whitinsville girl.

The tip that Sherman had other secret loves was revealed to Corporal Robert T. Thompson and State Officer Albert F. Sheehan early today.

The officers admitted they had such information. They refused to reveal where it came from. They said they had not yet obtained substantiation of the report.

They were also seeking the possessors of a mystery canoe that was seen near the scene of the murder of Singletary Lake at the moment Sherman was pushing the clasping hand of his wife from his shoulder to make certain death would overtake her.

The canoe was reported to have contained a man and a woman. It was also said they actually saw Sherman's canoe tip and his wife's battle for life against her husband in the water.

The slaying had created a strange situation in the towns of Whitinsville, Sutton and Douglas, where both Sherman and his pretty wife were well known and were regarded as a happily married couple.

Feeling against Sherman was running high throughout Worcester County today.

VENUE CHANGE

So pronounced is the feeling that Attorney Fred Humes, present counsel for the self-confessed slayer, admitted today that he was anticipating filing a request for a change of venue, possibly to a more stable County.

He frankly admitted he was of the opinion that it would be impossible for his client to obtain a fair trial if he were tried before a jury of Worcester County residents.

The announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Sherman that they would fight to the end to save their son from the death chair, even if it cost them every penny they owned, was regarded as an indication that Attorney Humes would soon be joined by possibly two other Worcester County attorneys in the fight to save Sherman.

Steps to have Sherman examined on his sanity by a group of psychiatrists will be taken today by Assistant District Attorney Canedella. He said the examinations would probably begin within the next ten days or two weeks.

When Sherman was informed he might escape the death penalty if he was found to be mentally unbalanced, he scoffed at such a possibility. He reiterated his statement that he wanted to die in the chair and get it over with.

Should he be declared sane his counsel, it is reported would fight to have the alleged confession to police barred from the trial.

It was learned that he will at least attempt to refute the confession and that Sherman, when he goes on trial, will go back to his original story that his wife was the victim of drowning, following accidental tipping of the canoe.

DEATH ASKED

Branding the slaying as the most cold-blooded murder that had ever occurred in the vicinity of Worcester, Canedella declared the State would demand the extreme penalty of death for the murder of Alice Dudley Sherman.

Strangely enough the parents who had lost their daughter by murder offered no bitter denunciation of their son-in-law for his act.

"Innocent Reason" for American Tragedy Killing

Three intimate camera studies of Miss Esther Magill, for whose love Newell P. Sherman said he killed his wife.

Slain Wife's Body Borne From Where Killer Sang

Sutton, July 23—To the church in which her husband sang his secret requiem for her last Saturday, the body of Alice Dudley Sherman was borne today.

But before the journey was completed—from the watery grave where he had consigned her to a grave where kinder hands than his have placed her—there was a second funeral service in the church of her girlhood.

First, here in the Congregational church where the deep bass voice of her husband poured forth solos, then over in Douglas, where she had left her family four years ago to marry him, the funeral rites took place.

And there in Douglas she was buried.

More tender hands than his, which had pushed her to death in Lake Singletary, bore her coffin today. His kin and her kin carried her out of the home where both she and her slayer had lived, to the church where both she and her slayer had worshiped.

There Newell Sherman rehearsed his solos last Saturday night before he took her out and drowned her.

There she lay in death today, and above her closed eyes was the choir loft where he sang as he held his ghastly secret in his heart.

There the pastor, Rev. Randolph Hill, recommended her to Almighty God for heavenly rest.

And then, journeying back into time, she was carried to the Congregational Church in Douglas where she had married him.

Next she traversed the roads where she had spent her childhood and finally she was buried among her ancestors in one of the oldest New England cemeteries.

Norman Perry and Albin Swindell, relatives of the accused husband, and Gustavus and Harry Dudley, relatives of the dead girl wife, placed the coffin in the grave.

Defends Name

Whitinsville, July 23—David Magill, invalid father of Esther Magill, "unconscious reason" for the murder of Mrs. Newell P. Sherman, said today:

"I have lived in Whitinsville more than 40 years and the name of my family has never been besmirched. My daughter used to ride to and from work with Sherman, but she told me she never had any more than that to do with him and I believe her.

"She told me any affection he might have had for her was entirely one-sided."

Flood Halts Mass In Somerville

Thousands of gallons of water released by a burst main ripped up the paving of Victoria street, West Somerville, today, and flooded the basement of Immaculate Conception Church. Slight damage was also caused to homes in the vicinity.

The break occurred near Woodstock street, at a joint in a six-inch underground main.

The church basement, where mass was to be celebrated by Rev. Michael J. Manning, was flooded to a depth of four inches. Services were called off while firemen and water department workers pumped out the building.

Bankruptcy Plea

Liabilities of $129,411 and assets of $200 are listed in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed in Federal court today by Harry Cohen, 61 Bronson street, Springfield, manager of moving picture theaters.

thought of him—I told him I didn't want any part of him and that I would never marry him. He knew I had several boy friends."

Esther swayed back and forth in a rocking chair in her mother's living room and she talked—frankly. Repeatedly she said:

"I have nothing to hide."

Repeatedly she promised to tell everything as the witness stand when the state places the 225-pound "Model youth" who "never took a drink" on trial for his life in payment for his "first sin."

"So why shouldn't I tell my story?" she said. "I don't want anybody to think there was anything between us. There never was. Sure I went out on three parties with him. But, and please say this, we never went alone."

She called Sherman a "Psalm singing murderer."

Esther is only 17—a young girl in years. But, she possesses the wisdom of maturity.

Throughout the interview, her observations on life, on the eternal triangle, on love and marriage, savored of ripened youth.

Admittedly, she styled herself a small town girl, who had no big town ideas about flaunting social conventions.

She liked the companionship of youth her own age, she said. She didn't want to go about with a married man and have the whole town talking.

"I never went with him alone," she picked up the thread of her story. "Twice I went to a Grange party at Lake Singletary, but his wife and mother were with us.

"The four of us went to Worcester to an Odd Fellows party once. Why, I liked Alice, his wife, better than I cared for him. HE'S "ONLY A HUSBAND"

"She was my friend. As for him, why he was only her husband. To think that he let her drown and then drew me into this horrible mess. Gee, how could a man do that? Well, I guess all men aren't like him.

"The last time I saw him was on April 26 when I met him at a Grange party. I was with my girl chum. Later I met him at the lake and he was with his wife.

"As I think back now, he told me then I had a date with him. I told him he was crazy. I guess he is. He must be, building up this crazy feeling for me.

"I always took him kiddingly. I thought he was joking when, for instance, he once told me he was jealous of another fellow at the mill. I knew he hadn't any right to be jealous, for after all he was married, and so I laughed it off.

"When we got home that night after the Grange party three months ago, his mother took me to one side and told me it didn't look nice for her son to be seen with me, a single girl. Right then and there I broke up even the slight friendship we had. I refused to let him drive me home from work.

"Maybe that refusal burned him up. Maybe then, because I wouldn't let him drive me home, he got all worked up over it. Something must have started him on that insane idea of killing poor Alice.

"But I preferred to be friends with Alice rather than with him. She was such a grand girl, I couldn't have hurt her.

"The real mess is his. He dragged me into it, but I have nothing to fear. I have told the police the whole story. When they want me to tell it to a jury I will be ready and willing.

"One day it was raining and he offered to drive me home. I thought nothing about it and let him. He was a clean-minded fellow who treated girls respectfully. He didn't want to hug or kiss me like some fellows.

"And anyway, there were other girls along. He drove them home, too. There was no harm in that. We worked at the same place. He was a machinist. I met his wife later on and we got real chummy. She came to my house and I went to hers.

"I'm just an innocent victim in all this. Things went along like that for ever so long. In a small town, you do that. Then one day he frightened me. He asked me if I would marry him if he got rid of his wife.

"I looked at him and laughed. I knew he couldn't mean it. He already had a wife and children.

"But there was something about his face that told me he meant what he said and my fright turned to anger. I was mad.

"How could he say such a thing? I told him never to say it again.

"I never dreamt he would kill Alice because he said that. In fact I never thought about it again until this all happened."

Love's Insanity

Heart Breaks Without Hate

DREISER WRITES ON SHERMAN

Theodore Dreiser, one of the world's foremost novelists, in the following article, written exclusively for the Los Angeles Examiner and Universal Service, discusses the Newell P. Sherman crime of Worcester, Mass.—the latest American tragedy to parallel the plot of his own best-selling novel, "An American Tragedy."

By THEODORE DREISER
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, July 23—This Newell P. Sherman crime is about the 16th or 17th such case that I have personally studied.

In this type of crime, I hold that the person who commits it is not sane, because anybody desperately in love is not sane—particularly a person sufficiently in love to be willing—as many of them are—to commit suicide, or if not that, to kill someone else in order to accomplish their dream of happiness.

Theodore Dreiser

In numerous cases I examined before writing "An American Tragedy," I found that the murderer had been confronted by the same social and psychological situation.

In nearly every case, either the wife of the poorer girl, with whom he was having intimate relations, was in the background, and the latter love offered escape from what seemed to the murderer intolerable conditions.

But society would say that the conditions which, to the murderer seemed intolerable, would to a normal man seem tolerable and right, and hence, anyone killing to escape them should be hanged. But to a man in love—enough in love to kill another person—the so-called normal conditions would seem unnatural and abnormal, and, hence, unless his wife or victim chose to set him free the only escape, in his option, would be murder.

Theme Dramatic

The reason that I finally chose the Chester Gillette case for my book, "An American Tragedy," was because the details were more dramatic, but as a matter of fact, I might have selected any one of the many that have taken place.

Since publication of the novel, there have been four similar repetitions of this crime—each one involving a lake, a canoe and the drowning of an unwanted girl.

Despite all of the executions that have followed these various crimes, the plotters—the insanely in love men—continue to employ this very much used but ineffectual remedy, seemingly considering it perfect.

Nevertheless, my contention is that love is a mechanistic, chemical reaction, against which the lover—where he is really deeply moved—is powerless.

In all cases I have contended that this crime of passion is not one to be submitted to an ordinary jury composed mostly of middle-aged or elderly people who have either never experienced, or have since completely forgotten their early sex passions.

Invariably they see the cold-blooded criminal plotting murder—never a youth so chemically moved that he no longer has the power to reason.

Special Trial

I have maintained and once more advocate that all such cases should not go before a sex-disappointed district attorney, or judge or jury for adjudication.

I think that on the bench should sit, not only the judge, but a psychiatrist of accredited merit, and a third person preferably a man or woman of the world, familiar with the mechanistic processes of life.

Under such circumstances, if these persons felt that such passional explosions were a sign of weakness—then all such victims should be executed.

If, on the other hand, they see that crimes of this kind are not the will of the victim but really the inevitable consequence of temperamental contacts, and can find some excuse for the existence of such victims, then their lives should be spared.

Personally, whether such victims are saved or not saved, I predict that, so long as the sex mechanism of life persists, so long will there be such crimes.

And in consequence we will continue to have such works of art as Faust, Romeo and Juliet and Cyrano de Bergerac.

Pensacola, Fla., July 23 (INS)—William Braden, prohibition agent, was probably fatally wounded and Charles Ash, negro was instantly killed during a raid on a whiskey still near here today.

Wife Loses In Love Test

Salem, July 23 — Mrs. Bertha A. Mann testified today in her suit for divorce against John, Mann that "the other woman" in the case when found with Mann merely asked:

"Which of us do you love?"

Mann declared in favor of the "other woman," she said, and Judge Edward B. O'Brien, in Probate Court granted her a divorce on ground of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Alice L. Warner, Cushing street, Salem, was granted a divorce from Daniel G. Warner on charges of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Warner testified her former husband had chased her from their home with a rifle.

ERA TO REFILL 4000 Tree Holes

Four thousand holes were dug by the ERA for the planting of trees along the streets of Boston. Then it was decided not to plant the trees after all.

So 384 men will be employed for five weeks filling in the holes and repairing the damaged sidewalks. The original project called for 7000 trees, but this was reduced to 3000.

TEAR GAS ROUTS 1800

In Indiana Strike Riots

By Associated Press

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23—National Guardsmen hurled two barrages of gas bombs today to disperse 1800 strikers at the gates of a stamping mill, focal point of Terre Haute's general strike.

Several persons were beaten as the crowd refused the troops' orders to retreat to streets adjoining the plant.

Five reputed sympathizers were arrested. The first day's business loss was estimated at $200,000.

The fracas marked the first violence of the military control over the city, occasioned by a general walkout of union labor in sympathy with striking workmen of the stamping mill.

Edward F. McGrady, formerly of Cambridge, Mass., now assistant secretary of labor, may fly here from Washington later today to take a hand in efforts to stop the strike.

Military control of the city by the guardsmen offered a promise of relief today to citizens whose supplies of food, ice, gasoline and other necessities were shut off by the strike.

Brigadier-General D. Wray Depraz said brewery and dairy delivery men already had indicated a desire to return to work. Utility services were uninterrupted. Groceries, restaurants, barber shops, filling stations, department stores, theaters, clothing stores, taverns and drug stores were closed yesterday, as was one hotel. Hospitals were undisturbed.

The Merchants Association today voted to re-open their stores tomorrow morning in spite of the strike. It was the consensus that with the troops on duty the shops could be opened with safety.

SEPT. 14 SET For Launching Here

HITLER Hits Catholic VETS

STEEL HELMETS, JEWS SUFFER

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 23—The organization of Catholic War Veterans was dissolved in Prussia today by governmental decree.

Officials of the Steel Helmets—corresponding to the American Legion in the United States—said they feared their own body, throughout Germany, would be the next to be smashed.

The dissolution of the Catholic veterans was ordered by Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia, also German minister of aviation, as a further step in the Nazi campaign to purge Germany of "political Catholicism."

It was said Goering's action undoubtedly would be paralleled by the governments of the other German states.

HIT JEWISH CHILDREN

The decree gave as grounds that the unity of the German people was disturbed by the existence of separate veterans' organizations.

Meanwhile the Nazi fight against Jews was carried on with unabated violence.

Some 500 Jewish children between the ages of 6 and 14 today were informed by the social welfare workers who were to take charge of them at various suburban stations that they could not go, as has been their custom, to the athletic grounds because they were non-Aryans.

Daily, through vacation period, children of the poor have been transported to the sports grounds called Oberschoeneweide and Wuhlheide to play in the sunshine.

Two days ago, however, a number of Aryan children assembled before the Wuhlheide and hurled stones at the Jewish children inside.

SLAP AT POLAND

A considerable number of the children thus attacked have parents who are Polish citizens.

The action against the Catholic veterans followed closely another decree, which provided that students in higher schools need not attend religious exercises.

Paris Bank Head Grilled in N. Y.

By Associated Press

New York, July 23—B. Coles Neidecker, banker, was taken to police headquarters today for questioning in connection with his closed Travelers' Bank in Paris.

Although not formally arrested, he was held for further instructions from the State Department and French police.

Paris, July 23 (AP)—Legal authorities said today they would break the seals of the Travelers' Bank, closed for several days, and examine its books to clear up circumstances surrounding the concern and its head, B. Coles Neidecker, who was reported to have left for the United States.

ARLINGTON MAN Stricken at Sea

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 23 (AP)—Daniel Lehy, 45, Arlington, Mass., seaman aboard the oil tanker Gulf Star bound for Philadelphia from Port Arthur, Texas, was taken today to the Marine Hospital in Key West by the coast guard seaplane Procyon to be treated for strangulated hernia.

NAME GIVEN By Coma Victim

Torrington, Ct., July 23 (AP)—A man found unconscious here two days ago regained consciousness today for a few minutes and said he was Harold Quirk of Northbridge, Mass. Hospital officials said he then lapsed into unconsciousness.

The man's condition is reported as "extremely critical."

COURTHOUSE Bill Substituted

Under a bill substituted today in the Senate, provision is made for building a new Suffolk courthouse at a cost of $5,000,000, provided funds are supplied by the federal government.

Redraft of the bill will come up for a third reading tomorrow.

DRIVER KILLED As Truck Topples

Rene W. Bergeron, 32, of LaGrange st., West Roxbury, was killed today when the milk truck he was driving toppled over a soft shoulder as he swerved to avoid an approaching car in Needham.

Special Session Hint By Curley

Failure of the Legislature to pass the pending $20,800,000 bond issues for state work and wages projects will mean a special session of the Legislature to consider a relief issue of $20,000,000, Governor Curley declared today.

This course will be necessary for distribution of welfare to cities and towns if the work program fails by the wayside.

Announcement from Washington that it would refuse ERA assistance in South Dakota if the farm hands there continue to spurn work in the grain fields, the governor remarked, plainly indicates that the government intends to discontinue welfare relief after September 1, he said.

He pointed out that with a number of cities and towns in Massachusetts in need of financial assistance, it will be absolutely imperative that this assistance be given them in the event that relief is not extended through the $20,800,000 work and wages program.

Discontinuance of its ERA relief work by the government will force the state to act, he said.

Cape 'Woodling' Gurgles Her Glee

"Hi there!" Thus the Mashpee foundling greets his visitors. Naturally enough, the six-months-old baby girl found in the Mashpee woods only can imply "Hi there!" by waving her tiny hands and gurgling. She is playing with her rabbit, oblivious to her lucky escape from death and to the strange absence of her parents.

Illness Gone, Woods Babe Smiles Again

Harwich, July 23—"Miss Cape Cod," the six-months-old girl abandoned in the Mashpee woods last Tuesday night, appeared today to be fully recovered from her illness of yesterday.

More than 50 letters and scores of telephone calls have been received at the home of Dr. John F. Nickerson from families seeking to adopt the child.

The baby will remain at the West Harwich home of Dr. Nickerson until the state division of child welfare is notified by authorities that all hope of establishing her identity has been abandoned.

NORMA FREE AUG. 21

Millen Widow's Term Near End

Four more weeks and Norma Brighton Millen, widowed bride of the machine-gun slayer, will be free.

With time off for good behavior she will be released from Dedham jail August 21, it was learned today.

A visit of her father, Norman Brighton, to the office of District Attorney Edmund Dewing today gave rise to reports of immediate parole.

The county commissioners who must approve a parole were in session in the courthouse at the same time, but all parties concerned said there was to be no parole.

Norma's father said he asked Dewing to have his daughter's clothing, seized at the time of her arrest in New York, returned to her.

"Norma wants to alter and press the clothes," he said.

"She is in good spirits and looking forward eagerly to getting out. She has gone through it like a soldier.

"She has been granted no favors and will have soon paid what the state demanded."

Norma was sentenced to one year as an accessory after murder and the year will expire September 26. She will be allowed three days a month for good behavior, like any other prisoner.

MAN-MADE PLAGUES GRIMLY AWAIT BATTLE CALL

GERMS BIG FACTOR IN NEXT WAR, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

(Editor's Note: The spread of disease by bacteriological warfare in the next world conflict, wreaking untold horror upon armies and civilian populations alike, is being considered as a preparedness measure in Europe, H. R. Knickerbocker declares in the eighth article of his series, "The Great Chaos.")

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(World Copyright, 1935, by International News Service. Reproduction in Whole or Part Strictly Prohibited.)

London, July 23—Disease caused by the last war killed 28,379,000 civilians throughout the world, or double the number of dead soldiers, according to Professor L. Hersch, Swiss authority on international statistics.

Disease in the last war was involuntary. Disease in the next war could conceivavly be multiplied by belligerent action, for the league experts, far from ruling bacteriological warfare out of account, declare it has "deadly military possibilities."

Against its use is the fact that once started, an epidemic might spread to the people who started it.

Practically the whole nation would have to be immunized before a belligerent government could afford to spread the germs of disease among its enemy.

GERMS HIGHLY POTENT

But competent bacteriologists insist no serious consideration of the next war would be complete without regarding the possibilities of germ warfare.

In the present state of Europe, nations are vigilant for the least indication that it may be in course of preparation.

Four eminent medical men, Professor Pfeiffer of Breslau, Professor Bordet of Brussels Pasteur Institute, Professor Madsen of State Serum Institute, Copenhagen, and Professor Cannon of Harvard Medical School, rendered to the League of Nations a classical report on bacteriological warfare at the time when disarmament and the prohibition of cruel and unusual weapons appeared to be a possibility.

All four men reported their repugnance at the idea of harnessing that most humane of sciences, medicine, to the chariot of war, but all four felt it their duty to point out the technical possibilities.

Typhus, typhoid, cholera, bubonic plague, the germs of anthrax, glanders, rabies and the micrococus of Malta fever were named as cultures which it would be possible to cultivate and disseminate among human beings. Horses might be infected artificially with glanders. Rinderpest might be spread among the enemy's herds.

Professor Cannon suggested airplanes might spread plant parasites which might destroy the enemy's crops.

Professor Pfeiffer admitted the possibility of projecting highly virulent strepto-staphylo-cocci, or the germ of anthrax, glanders or rabies in shells, grenades or shrapnel.

But he thought it would be much more dangerous "if, for instance, airmen were to throw glass tubes filled with virulent gouillon cultures of glanders on closely packed crowds.

PLANES TO DEAL DEATH

"The shock of hitting the ground would dissolve the germs contained in these tubes into a cloud of fine infectious spray. This would be very likely to cause cases of glanders by means of inhalation and small injuries from infected glass splinters."

Professor Madsen opined that "airmen or persons with a knowledge of the topography of localities might infect the central sources of the water or milk supply of a big city. They could thereby propagate epidemics of typhoid fever, cholera or other intestinal diseases."

He also thought "the voluntary propagation of influenza epidemics even more serious than the last general epidemic" might perhaps be possible.

Most military men in Europe scout the idea. They say bacteriological warfare is too dangerous for the user. But what discourages the proponents of peace is that the same objections were raised at first to poison gas.

Yet the three or four years of scientific work by belligerents discovered ways to use poison gas with a minimum of danger for the user and a maximum for the victim. It is argued that precisely the same evolution may take place in the germ arm. Self interest may check this arm, but nothing else.

Death rays and rays to stop motors are another category of weapons which nations are leaving to scientists. Yet there is plenty of evidence war ministers are interested. As long ago as two years Charlottenburger Technische Hochschule in Berlin had developed a ray capable of killing a small animal.

Dispatches from Rome describe experiments by Senator Marconi in stopping internal combustion engines by extinguishing their magneto sparks. Radio authorities admit this is a theoretical possibility, its practical application depends largely on the radius of the extinguishing rays.

Obviously development of such a ray would have enormous effect upon aerial warfare. With sufficient power behind the ray to project it to average flying height, it could be used to bring down enemy planes without firing a shot.

This would be the greatest invention of all to "humanize" war. But it could not be used against Diesel engines.

IDEAL PLANE FOUND

Germany has been developing Diesel airplane engines ever since the late Professor Hugo Junkere brought out his first model five years ago.

Another extremely interesting future airplane type will be the mosquito plane, originated by Ernst Udet, who with his 54 air victories ranked next to the great Manfred Von Richhofen in the war and is today Germany's greatest living ace.

The mosquito plane was taken in hand by Rohrbach, one of the leading airplane manufacturers.

Based upon an entirely new principle, it utilizes the flicker motion of a mosquito's wings.

Udet declares the Mosquito, capable of rising or descending vertically, and of remaining motionless in the air, and of speeds phenomenally great for its size, to be the ideal flying organism. His plane would duplicate the mosquito's flight.

Its uses in war would be obvious. No news has been received of its further development since General Goering took over the air forces of the Reich.

MAGIC "EYES" INVENTED

Television for battle direction is an application of the new science which British experts declare feasible. Sending instruments at the front could transmit a living picture of the scene of conflict immediately to the eyes of the general staff at headquarters.

Col. T. E. Lawrence of Arabia, recently killed on his motorcycle, had devoted the last years of his life to the development of a new weapon of war, which may prove important in naval conflict. As Aircraftsman Shaw, in the R. A. F., he invented a new type of boat, so speedy and seaworthy that it may replace the submarine.

These boats make 40 to 60 miles an hour over seas so rough that large steamers have to lie up. Capable of carrying two torpedoes, they could be a menace to shipping.

Lawrence intended them as "crash boats," to go out and rescue hydroplanes in trouble. Scott Payne of Southampton are making them.

The list of weapons could be extended indefinitely.

What is the net outlook for Europe?

Will the new war be shorter because it is more brutal?

Will it cause fewer casualties because it will not last so long?

RELIGIOUS WAR FEARS GROW IN IRELAND

By Associated Press

Belfast, Ireland, July 23—Fears of a widespread anti-Protestant attack in the Irish Free State received fresh impetus today as houses in County Meath and elsewhere were plastered with the slogan, "Remember Belfast."

Religious strife, arising from Orangemen's celebration July 12 of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, spread extensively, Anti-Catholic outbreaks occurred in Protestant Ulster and anti-Protestant demonstrations in the Catholic Free State to the south.

This city, where the conflict originated, became quieter today, although a 19-year-old girl, Mary Cunningham, was wounded in the leg last night during an exchange of shots in the Brookfield street area.

After a special conference of Nationalist members of Parliament, a delegation departed for London, hoping to meet Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin immediately.

Sporadic street fights, fires and demonstrations marked the strife both in north and south.

Dock workers at Limerick, on the Shannon River in the southwestern section of the Free State, called one strike, refusing to unload a cargo from a vessel owned by a Belfast firm.

Agitation arose for another strike in Belfast, where shipyard workers returning from vacations were attacked. After a brief skirmish, the workers finally reached the shipyards with only one casualty.

Clergymen exhorted thousands of workers inside the shipyards to throw their support to the cause of peace, and the workers consented to stay at their posts.

Windows were smashed in several sections of Ireland. Among the buildings destroyed by fire was a Protestant church in Kilmallock, County Limerick, Free State.

With nine fatalities already registered here, Coroner Thomas Alexande, held an inquest after which murder indictments were returned naming "persons unknown."

The coroner denounced the ten days of disorders. Following the Protestant Orangemen's celebrations of the battle that made Protestantism supreme as the religion of the north, as "all so wanton and meaningless."

"Bigotry is the curse of peace and good will," he said.

PARTY MURDER GIRLS ON TRIAL

By International News Service

Detroit, July 23 — William Schweitzer, man of many aliases, and his three "party girl" lures, Florence and Loretta Jackson and Jean Miller, went on trial today for the murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney.

Schweitzer, by his own confession, killed Dickinson, a nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, the night of June 25 for the $134 he carried.

Loretta and Florence confessed they planned to "take Dickinson out, show him the town, rob and shoot him so he couldn't talk."

The Miller woman refused to admit she knew Dickinson was to be killed.

Dickinson was in Detroit investigating the claim of Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael Witherspoon against the 40-million-dollar estate of the late William H. Yawkey, pioneer lumberman and foster-father of Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox.

HOOVER VISITS Stir Guesses

Palo Alto, Cal., July 23 (AP)—More "social" visits of leading Republicans with former President Hoover increased political speculation today.

Guests of Hoover yesterday were General Nathan MacChesney of Chicago and James M. Beck, solicitor-general in the regimes of Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

ROCHE CASE Continued Again

Hearing of the manslaughter charge against Francis J. Roche, Cambridge city councillor, accused of causing the death of Austin T. McKeough, a night club waiter, was continued in Municipal Court today for a second time, until July 30.

TREE PLANTING AGAIN IN FALL

More than 3500 trees which were not planted in Boston streets, under an ERA project will be planted in the Fall, Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission and Boston Director of ERA, said today.

The cemented sidewalks which were disturbed by transplanted trees were also in order for repairs.

His announcement dispelled reports that holes already dug were to be filled in without trees.

Arthur G. Rotch, state administrator, announced that the ERA headquarters would move to the Park Square building next Saturday and Sunday.

The library project which is now located in the ERA headquarters will be forced to move to a location not yet chosen.

Rotch said an ERA project has been granted for grading and improvements at the Fall River General Hospital. It will employ 137 men.

SOVIETS HATE ALIENS

ALL IMMIGRANTS TOOLS, RED CHIEF DECLARES

Once Fred E. Beal was a "100 per cent Communist." He was an official of radical textile workers' unions and was Communist party organizer in America.

A native of Lawrence, he led the Communist element in big textile strikes in that city and in others.

Then Beal, a fugitive from justice in America, fled to Russia. Today, having learned his lesson, he details more of his experiences in Soviet Russia

By FRED E. BEAL

ARTICLE FOURTEEN

Word of the turmoil among the foreigners in the Kharkov tractor plant reached Moscow. Comrade Smith, political czar of the foreign section of the all-Soviet tractor trust, hotfooted it to Kharkov. Smith is a Finn. His face is disfigured by a deep scar. He had been in New York, acting as Moscow's representative with the American Communist party.

At the critical moment, when the foreign workers, especially the Germans, were on the warpath against the unbearable conditions, a meeting was called to celebrate the Anniversary of the Red Army.

At that time, the Americans, reading about the Ford plant reopening, in America, talked about going home. An attempt had to be made by Moscow to renew their dwindling faith and keep them on the job. They had to be given more inspiration to keep them from starting their own little revolution.

Foreigners Demand Truth

At the meeting, Smith spent two hours talking about the Red army. The foreigners moved nervously in their seats. When the time came for questions, an American spoke up abruptly:

"Do you know people are dropping dead from starvation here on the streets?"

Instantly, Smith was on the alert.

"Where did you read that . . . in the Chicago Tribune?" he brazened.

The foreigners laughed, a kind of laugh that said:

"We don't have to read American papers for this kind of news. We see these things all about us.

Smith shouted to his audience:

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN . . . coming to the Soviet Union to criticize and make demands! Where do you think you are—in Union Square? Here the dictatorship rules with an iron hand! It is unmerciful to its enemies! We will not let Bourgeois sentimentalities stand in our way!

"Bread!" sneered Smith. "You comrades ask for bread! What about the Russians who are not getting a third of the bread you get? Are they complaining?

"No! It's some Fascist dog, creeping in our midst from some Capitalist country, who is trying to bring dissension and disruption to the forward swing of the Socialist construction and, in the end, keep us from having a Communist revolution in America and from freeing the Scottsboro boys!"

Smith said all that in one breath. Before the meeting closed a prewritten resolution glorifying in the Red army was endorsed.

Hate for Outsiders Shown

After the meeting Comrade Smith and I motored to the City of Kharkov in the plant's car and partook of what you might call a swell feed at the Red hotel. Smith paid 100 rubles for the meal. He criticized me for being so soft with the foreigners.

"See how I handled them," he boasted. "They were like putty in my hands. The Bourgeois folks—we'll show them!"

"You know," he suddenly eyed me slant-eyed, suspiciously, "there is funny business going on around here. The foreigners at the plant are restless. There must be a German Fascist spy among them. All these complaints are not coming out of thin air. There is something behind it all. Have you any suspicion?"

His eyes narrowed to mere slits. He trusted no one. He was nervous and obviously anxious to find some goat whom he could blame for planting the seed of rebellion among the foreigners.

Dropping all pretence, I leaned back in my chair, looked him straight in the eye, and said:

"Comrade Smith, your speech today was just a lot of meaningless phrases, emotional and lacking all logic. Why didn't you tell them the truth about the state of things and have it over with? I thought we were trying to do away with treating adult workers like eight-year-old children.

"The foreigners, sooner or later, are going to discover the mess here with the collectives and industries. If the situation is not explained to them, there will be hell to pay.

"The peasants are running away from the collectives by the millions. They come to our colony to beg for food, right at our doors.

"The American party members are asking why so many peasants are being arrested and why so many of them are being shot and exiled. You can't continue calling them ALL 'Kulaks.'

"The truth is the foreigners are to undergo a terrible shortage of food this coming summer. Next winter it will be worse. You 'phrase slingers' and 'slogan repeaters' are going to be blown off your lid when the pressure from below works up to a ferment!"

Immigrants Merely Tools

Comrade Smith was amazed. He wanted to know how the party saw fit to put me in charge of the foreigners when I didn't seem to understand the A B C of Communism.

"Tell them the TRUTH!" He snapped at me. "WHY should we tell they ANYTHING! Most of them are Bourgeois minded, even if they are Communist party members. They have come from lands under the influence of the Bourgeois ideology. All we want of them is their brains and skill to get the plant running, and teach the Russians how to run the plant. After that, we can dispense with their services and they can go back to their Capitalist Fatherland.

(More revelations of the oppression of the Soviet workers tomorrow).

SEC WRIT BANS NAZZARO CO.

A permanent injunction forbidding E. E. Nazzaro & Co., Inc., State street brokers, from doing any more business in securities was issued today by Federal Judge Hugh D. McLellan.

The injunction was granted on application of Edmund J. Brandon, New England director of the Securities Exchange Commission.

The injunction names E. E. Nazzaro as president and treasurer of the enterprise.

Brandon alleged the concern violated the Securities Act of 1933 by continuing business while insolvent, with liabilities of more than $100,000.

Lawyers representing customers were informed last week the company was short $40,000 to $50,000. Nazzaro's attorney begged for time to liquidate.

Brandon said today a number of other brokerage concerns were under scrutiny.

10 COINS FOR CENT

U. S. Plans Midget Money

Washington, July 23—Midget coins the government proposes to mint will save sales tax payers money, officials said today, and also will return a tidy profit for the Treasury.

Secretary Morgenthau announced that "within the next day or so," Congress will be asked to grant permission for the creation of half-cent and one-mill pieces. The purpose, it was said, was to correct inequities in sales tax systems in 22 states.

For example, it was said, most of these states have a 2 per cent sales levy. If a person makes a 25-cent purchase, the tax would be a half cent. But at present there is no half cent coin, and so a full cent is collected.

The profit to the government will be in the form of seigniorage. Last year coinage of one-cent pieces alone netted a profit of $330,000. There would be less return on half cent and mill (one tenth of a cent) pieces, but mints can turn out even these at a profit.

Morgenthau denied that the Treasury's decision foretold a federal sales tax.

8,000,000 Halves

By Associated Press

Washington, July 23—Theoretically, there are 8,000,000 half cent pieces now in "circulation" in the United States.

The United States used to mint such coins, but it stopped in 1857. Eight million of them, never turned in, are listed on the Treasury's books as still outstanding. Some are in the hands of collectors many are lost.

Troopers Halt 2000

Two thousand motorists are stopped every week by state troopers, it was disclosed today. Often the number is considerably larger. Violations include just about every law on the books, police say.

GENERAL TAKES LINDY CROWN

By Associated Press

Washington, July 23—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is no longer the highest ranking member of the "Caterpillar Club."

When Major-General George E. Leach, chief of the militia bureau, dived from a burning army plane over the Arizona desert, recently, and drifted to earth with his parachute, he automatically replaced Lindbergh as highest ranking officer in the organization.

General Leach is the 705th person to join the mythical club, estimates Major Folk Harmel, unofficial recorder. There have been 607 men and 8 women who have saved their lives by parachutes and thereby become eligible for membership.

There are no dues, no meetings, no officers in the club, but a parachute manufacturing company gives a small gold caterpillar pin to each new member.

RAMPANT GUSHER

3-Inch Oil Scum Halts Traffic

By Associated Press

New York, July 23—Stories of the flooding of Lake Maracaibo, Venezuela, by an oil well were brought to New York today by returning tourists.

The huge lake covers one of the world's richest oil fields, the wells being driven directly into the lake bed and the oil taken off in barges.

Divers going to the bottom to investigate the possibility of capping the runaway gusher have discovered that the oil is pouring to the surface not only from the drilled hole but from a break in the lake bottom as well. It may be necessary to cap the whole immediate area.

Ends Own Life On Power Pole

Pittsfield, July 23—A novel method of committing suicide—electrocution on the top of a 40-foot high tension power tower—today proved fatal for John Culver, 20, a salesman. He died in House of Mercy Hospital.

Culver was found writhing on the ground at the foot of the tower suffering from severe burns.

Although no bones were broken in his fall, hospital authorities said burns caused his death. Patrolman Daniel W. Dunn said the man told him a bad attempted to die by contacting the 22,500-volt lines because he "was pressed for money on all sides."

Papa Triumphs

Seattle, Wash., July 23 AP)—The city diaper changing championship was held today by a man — and a 10 to 1 shot at that.

Competing only against men —the women had withdrawn— W. H. Love, 28-year-old father, switched the "three-cornered" underwear on his seven-months-old son, Jerry, in 16 seconds flat.

ITALY SNUBS ETHIOPIA KING, CROWDS CHEER FOR U. S.

By Associated Press

Addis Ababa, July 23—Reports circulated this afternoon that a refusal by the Italian minister to attend Emperor Haile Selassie's birthday anniversary reception today may cause a rupture of diplomatic relations between Italy and Ethiopia.

The emperor was 44 years old today and the event was celebrated with royal splendor.

Luigi Orazio Conte Vinci Gigliucci, Italian minister, refused to attend the diplomatic reception and an evening banquet because of the bitter tone of the emperor's recent address to Parliament.

CHEERS FOR U. S. ENVOY

On the other hand, a pro-American demonstration featured the afternoon. An immense multitude gathered outside the palace and cheered wildly when William Perry George, United States chargé d'affaires, arrived for the reception.

A sudden flutter of small American flags swirled through the great crowd and the Ethiopians shouted:

"Long live America!"

It was the first such popular demonstrations which has been seen recently for a foreigner in Addis Ababa and was interpreted as a tribute to the American people's love of independence and of humanitarianism.

The reception was impressive and conducted with an air of cordiality. Dr. Francis Janssens, dean of the diplomatic corps, spoke offering good wishes to the emperor on his anniversary.

Haile Selassie, seated on his throne, replied.

A grim note of war preparations formed part of the colorful festivities as army recruits were drilling in the streets adjacent to the palace while champagne flowed inside.

GIFTS OF LIONS

All were gorgeously arrayed in ceremonial costumes.

Tribesmen and chieftains, some bringing gifts of snarling lions, came to visit their monarch and to offer him fresh assurances of their loyalty and devotion in the crisis.

For the banquet to his followers, the emperor ordered raw meat —the warriors' favorite dish. For the diplomats, he offered glasses of "tej" (a native wine made from honey), as a gesture of hospitality.

Britain Masses Strong Fleet in Mediterranean

Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press

London, July 23—Coincident with the concentration of Italian troops in East Africa, Great Britain is massing what naval experts rate as the strongest fleet ever assembled in the Mediterranean.

Terse official announcements disclosed today that the capital ship strength in the Mediterranean is being increased at least 80,000 tons and that the fastest ships soon are to be centered at Malta, a base which commands the Italian routes to the Red Sea.

British experts said that although many more capital ships were sent into the Mediterranean until 18 years ago they could not compare to the present contemplated fleet because they were smaller and lacked modern war equipment.

France Plans Modified Italian "Protectorate"

By Associated Press

Paris, July 23 — Authoritative quarters disclosed today that France is seeking a treaty giving Italy economic domination over Ethiopia in exchange for Italy's guaranties of Ethiopia's nominal independence.

Under such a treaty, Italy would be given special privileges including immigration rights and would have, in return, to guarantee the sovereignty of the Ethiopian emperor.

While this solution would be akin to a protectorate, the French sources concerned said they hoped it would circumvent Emperor Selassie's objection to an outright protectorate.

London Sees Italy Soon Quitting Gold Standard

By Associated Press

London, July 23—The London money market and foreign financial circles today interpreted the new Italian decree permitting the lowering of the gold coverage for the lira as a preliminary to Italy's formal departure from the gold standard.

Foreign financial observers said they regarded Italy's step as a war measure, and that it had been expected for a number of months as a result of the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

Some observers stated they believed Italy would depart formally from the gold standard at approximately the date war breaks out.

Britain Seeks To Stave Off "Holy War"

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Geneva, July 23—Fearing a general uprising of all African blacks in a "holy war" against white superiority, Great Britain is determined to force League of Nations procedure to prevent a conflict even if it means Italian withdrawal from Geneva.

This was the statement made to International News Service by a high league official today as the council prepared to meet within a few days in a final effort to find a common ground for solution of the Italo-Abyssinian crisis.

Britain will have the support of France in her determined effort to uphold the "white man's burden" because of her own extensive colonial interests in Africa, this spokesman said.

His remarks were interpreted as an explanation of Britain's apparent willingness to drop negotiations for tripartite conversations among Britain, France and Italy in favor of routine League procedure, despite recent warnings from Rome that Italy would resign the League unless it granted her a mandate over Ethiopia.

GOLD SHIFT HITS ITALY'S BONDS

By Associated Press

Rome, July 23—Italian government bonds fell sharply and common stocks rose buoyantly today as the exchange reacted to a royal decree permitting the government to lower the legal limit of gold coverage for currency sight obligations, fixed at 40 per cent in 1927.

The lira held firm on the domestic market, losing only one centime.

Consolidated bonds, which form the majority of the public debt, fell one point to 66—which is to be compared to the quotation of 86 when the Italo-Ethiopian dispute began.

Treasury bonds dropped an average of one point. Industrial and other stocks enjoyed rises ranging around 4 to 6 points.

Metal and war equipment stocks were in particular demand. Fiat Motors rose 6 points.

Banking circles agreed Italy was still formally on the gold standard.

Eva to Duel Channel Tide

By International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, July 23—Eva Morrison, 25-year-old champion long distance swimmer of Boston, today awaited only favorable weather to begin an attempt to swim the English Channel from England to France—a feat never yet achieved by a woman.

Although several women have swum the treacherous channel from France to England, all attempts to beat it the other way have failed.

Despite this, the betting at Deal, south coast resort where Miss Morrison has been training, was that she will be successful and hang up another record for American women swimmers.

Experts who have watched Miss Morrison on practice swims in the channel for the past several weeks declared she is the most powerful woman swimmer seen there in some time.

DUTCH SCHULTZ ON TRIAL AGAIN

Malone, N. Y., July 23—In an atmosphere tense with enmity, Arthur Flegenheimer, alias "Dutch Schultz," began another fight today to escape imprisonment for neglecting to give the federal government its tax percentage of his illicit beer-purveying profits.

Schultz, erstwhile Bronx beer-runner and policy king, was in for some unpleasant moments in the court of Federal Judge Frederick H. Bryant, government prosecutors indicated.

They declared they would go further than prove Schultz evaded $92,000 taxes on his income.

They will portray him, they said, as closely connected with much of the guerilla warfare that featured New York prohibition days beer enterprises.

Dance Planned at Hopkins Estate in Dover

By BETTY ALDEN

"YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED to attend the Wychwood Wobbles," read the invitations which have just been received by a select group of debutantes and eligible young men . . . Most everyone was stumped as to just what a Wychwood Wobble might be . . .

Many had heard of the colly wobbles and thought they might be some sort of relative, but were unable to prove their claim . . . Then, after consulting Mr. Webster, who says that a wobble is "a hobbling or rocking motion," most everyone decided that the W. W. must be a species of dance . . . and that proves to be correct . . . The Wychwood Wobbles will be a small exclusive dance given by Jimmie C. Hopkins, Jr., at Wychwood, the summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hopkins in Dover, Mass. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson Hill, Jr., who used to live on Heath Hill in Brookline, but who are now living in California, evidently like the highly advertised climate, oranges and whatnot of the Pacific coast . . . In fact, Mr. Hill is so taken with the movie business that he has decided to become a movie actor . . . They are now living in Pauline Frederick's house in Hollywood and are hoping to find the path to movie stardom as easy for them as it has been for other Boston socialites . . .

Returning From Honeymoon

WHEN MR. AND MRS. LEWIS PROUTY went down to their summer home, Grey Shingles, in East Marion, Mrs. Prouty, who is better known to the public as Olive Higgins Prouty, planned to devote some time to her writing . . . but now they are looking forward to the return of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Mason, Jr., who have been honeymooning in Europe . . . Mrs. Mason was Jane C. Prouty, whose wedding was one of the loveliest of the June season . . .

Over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons entertained Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Fay at their home in Hyannisport . . .

The Charles Bigelows and the Robert Lowells have joined the other prominent Boston families who are summering at Mattapoisett on Buzzards Bay . . .

Bostonians who spend the winter at Palm Beach will be interested to know that Florence Wyeth has joined the ranks of the debs who will be presented in New York this season . . . Her father, Marion Wyeth, is a well known architect and a great many of Florida's most lavish resorts were his creations . . .

This Is Life

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

Last Sunday the pastor of an Evangelical Protestant church in Somerville had a large congregation. For some Sundays before he had not been entertaining a congregation as large as he thought he should. So he advertised.

He announced that on the Sunday to come he would preach on "Whiter Than Snow," with special refrigeration and snow effects. He had an ice company supply him with big cakes of ice to cover the pulpit, and artificial snow, and an igloo to serve as a rostrum for the sermon. It was so cold in the church that many kept on their overcoats.

Robert E. Rogers

History does not say what the ingenious and spectacular pastor wore—possibly a fur parka. Anyway, if one can trust the public prints, a good time was had by all and a great work was done for the Kingdom.

Next week the pastor plans to preach in an aviary surrounded by singing birds. There is, of course, a fine old tradition for that. St. Francis of Assisi is reputed to have preached to the birds. Also to the fish, and, if I am not mistaken, to the Wolf of Gubbio. Whether he advertised in the Assisi press and had special music I do not know.

Quite a Problem

It is a bothersome problem. What is the minister to do when he sees his church empty on a fine summer Sunday morning? The problem is particularly a Protestant minister's whose congregation rather does as it pleases in regard to attendance. Catholic churches tend to be better filled.

But only a year ago even the Catholic faithful had to be admonished by the Cardinal that they should not "catch a mass" at hazard while on the road bound for an all day outing.

I seem to remember, this also last summer, of a pastor whose church stands near a golf course. He advertised a Sunday morning short golf service and the congregation were invited to come in proper clothes for golf and to stack their clubs in the church porch.

Probably the best solution, so far as non-Catholics are concerned, is the union service, where the competing denominations agree to close up for a month in turn, leaving one building open and one clergyman on the job while the remainder vacation. That assures at least a skeleton congregation in the face of the attractions of a summer Sunday.

I do not wish to be censorious, but I have never believed that such devices as the artificial ice cakes and the birds really solve the problem. On the face of it, it would seem that a congregation gathered by such means, responding to such advertisement, isn't worth very much, religiously speaking.

I have said this once before in speaking about a Boston clergyman, now stationed on the more liberal and responsive Western coast, who made a practice of turning his Sunday evening services into a kind of spiritual vaudeville with klittie bands and imitations of Arizona Indian snake dances. It occurred to me that such devices merely showed that the Sunday evening service was moribund, almost dead beyond hope of revival.

Are we confronting an almost accomplished fact in the matter of the summer morning service as well? Is the competition of the out-of-doors, the open road, the sea, the mountains and the lakes, the beach reservation and the amusement park, too strong for the already scanty congregation, particularly in the Protestant churches, where denominational competition is so stupid and so deadly? I suspect so.

We shall not really know, of course, until we have tried out a genuine union of Protestant churches, with especial attention to powerful and eloquent preaching. I do not believe that the first class preachers among us have to have recourse to services in the circus tradition. A great preacher can usually keep his church reasonably well filled even in summer.

But I suspect that it would be more sensible to shut up the religious shop altogether during the hot months and start again with a boom after Labor Day. Many churches do exactly that. Do they suffer by such a realistic recognition of conditions as they are? I doubt it.

But such an experiment as the one described above certainly raises grave doubts as to how necessary people feel the church to be under our modern summer conditions.

While Stamme was treating his animal for a barbed wire cut on its leg, the mule kicked him on the jaw, knocking him unconscious and shattering his new set of "indestructible" false teeth.

Victor McLaglen Wins New Contract

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, July 23—No easy job to get just the right story for these foreign directors who have ideas of their own. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been searching for months to find a play for Fritz Lang's American debut.

Louella O. Parsons

Finally, James Warner Bellah's serial, "Passport to Hell," was settled upon to introduce Mr. Lang to the American public. It's a story of oil wells and has plenty of heavy drama.

Lang, who was one of UFA's most accomplished directors, will have Robert Montgomery in his first production. Bob went on to Europe from his farmhouse in Connecticut where he hied himself to get strong and healthy after a particularly heavy siege of picture-making.

• • •

"The Informer" has changed Victor McLaglen's entire screen future. It has put him in the class Jack Gilbert was in after he finished "The Big Parade," an actor that everybody is anxious to sign. Vic has just signed with Darryl Zanuck one of the very first contracts to be put on paper since the 20th Century crowd moved to Fox Hills.

It's a long termer and his first vehicle as a 20th Century-Fox star is to be "Professional Soldier" based on one of Damon Runyon's typical stories, "Gentlemen, the King."

• • •

I stumbled over several dozen good looking gobs on the Dick Powell set of "Anchors Aweigh" in my eagerness to get to Dick to tell him how much I liked him in "Broadway Gondolier." It will set a new record for Monsieur Powell and it will give Warners another big credit mark for entertainment of the kind that the public wants to see. While I was out on the Warner lot I heard all about the interesting "Captain Blood" sets that are being built and the news that Lionel Atwill has been chosen for the thrilling role of the captain of the white slavers.

• • •

All alone in Irving Thalberg's private projection room—that is, all alone except for a strange young man, and it's hard to say which one of us was more enthusiastic about "China Seas." I seldom do nip-ups after seeing a picture but that's just what I did for Irving has a natural in this one.

Jean Harlow has never done such a piece of dramatic work and Clark Gable will have more fans than ever if such a thing is possible. The picture is so excellently produced and the backgrounds of China seem so real they never give the impression of being faked. As for the story, it's melodrama, boys and girls, tempered with plenty of good comedy—and what entertainment.

• • •

It looks verra, verra much to me as if Preston Foster has won himself a permanent home on the RKO lot. Personally I think it all started with "The Informer," although on the lot they are attributing it to the unreleased "Last Days of Pompeii." Preston has just been signed again to play opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "Shooting Star," a story based on the life of Annie Oakley, the gal whom stage producers have learned to hate since they call free passes "Annie Oakleys."

Snapshots of Hollywood

STAN LAUREL, entertaining his dad, ARTHUR JEFFERSON, of London, former theatrical manager; yes, STAN'S real name is JEFFERSON; ORRY KELLY fighting an appendix operation and that's no fun; ADRIENNE AMES moving into a smaller house now that she is alone; you should see RUBY KEELER dancing with the Meglin kiddies, she looks like one herself.

A huge party at a night club with JOE SCHENCK, L. B. MAYER, HARRY COHN, HARRY RICHMAN and many, many others; almost a producers' convention with JACK WARNER at the same place dining with ANN ALVARADO and nearly everyone in the business flitting here and there; the new gal, KAY LINAKER now labeled LYNN ACKER, stepping out with PHILLIP REED; LORETTA YOUNG and HAL WALLIS arriving in town after a vacation at Lake Louise, Banff and the Canadian Rockies. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Diva's Brother in Charge of Music

"The Melody Lingers On," new Reliance production to be released through United Artists, is now before the cameras at Hollywood.

Alberto Curci, brother of the famous singer, Mme. Galli Curci, and a symphonic conductor of note is in charge of the operatic sequences.

Josephine Hutchinson is starred, with George Houston and Helen Westley heading the supporting cast.

Comedy Is Dennis Hit

By HARRIS MORGAN

Dennis, Mass., July 23—A rather attenuated little comedy, plainly labelled British, brought Margaret Anglin back to New England stages at the Cape Playhouse here last night.

The opening of "Fresh Fields," from the pen of Ivor Novello is preparatory to a New York, and possibly a Boston engagement in the fall, again under the banner of Raymond Moore, who has brought Cape Cod so consistently into the theatrical spotlight from the first days of the summer play houses.

London laughed at it heartily for 14 long months. Dennis, with the surrounding resorts and a sprinkling of dyed-in-the-wool urbanites and summer socialites received it cordially last evening.

• • •

The slim story is based on the plight of Lady Mary Crabbe, a not entirely humorless but completely impoverished member of the nobility, reduced to the extremity of taking a few paying guests.

It's not hard to guess, Lady Mary draws a few Provincials. And in keeping with the one hundred per cent English humor, they're an assortment of the rough diamonds, all with hearts of gold, ever assembled.

Mrs. Pidgeon and her charmingly outspoken daughter are from Australia. Mr. Sarcomb, the maternal uncle, is from the wilds of Wyoming. There's nothing, according to the "Dean old England" standard that's wilder.

As you might suspect and Mr. Novello knew so well, the rank outsiders, despite their millions, end up by ingratiating themselves so thoroughly with the aristocracy that there are a couple of marriages in the offing. Lady Lillian, with a veneer of loo hiding a "sponge cake interior," falls for the Westerner. The scion of the peerage falls for the gal from the kangaroo country.

And to even the thing up, Lady Mary, played to the hilt by Margaret Anglin, plans a trip around the world with the widow from the wide open spaces, with Paris and gigolos as an added attraction.

• • •

Miss Anglin, who after all startled the late Charles Frohman before the turn of the century, is immense, and does all that she can to pull up the slight dramatic fare into the realms of international humor.

Mary Sargent, affecting well the almost but quite obsolete clinging vine, turns in a credible portrait, and the Australians should get up and cheer about Eda Heinemann as the lady from Australia.

The young romantics are Philip Huston, hard put to it to get a job, and Leonore Campbell, and Dorothy Blackburn add a lot to the generally entertaining atmosphere.

"Fresh Fields" is summer fare. Maybe Boston and New York will like it in the fall. They'll certainly like Miss Anglin.

Screen Debut

Elizabeth Risdon, for ten years one of the principals of the Theater Guild, will make her screen debut in Columbia's Ruth Chatterton starring vehicle, "A Feather in Her Hat." Louis Hayward, Billie Burke and Wendy Barrie are featured.

He Proves He's Alive, Gets $150

A man walked into Cambridge police headquarters today and announced:

"I am Wilfred Stidstone of Saugus. You are dragging the Charles river for me. I am not in it."

The sergeant blinked.

"Are you sure?" he asked.

"Positive," said Stidstone.

"But you must be in it. Your car was abandoned by the river, and there was a bundle of clothes in it."

"Did you search the clothes?" asked Stidstone.

"Sure," said the sergeant. "We were looking for clues but there was nothing in the clothes."

"I hope you are wrong," said Stidstone. "Let me see the trousers."

The sergeant handed him the trousers and out of a side pocket Stidstone took $150.

The sergeant blinked twice.

"This is my $150 and I am Wilfred Stidstone and that is my car," said Wilfred Stidstone, "and these are my old trousers.

"A thief stole the car and the trousers but I guess he didn't make any better search than you did. Thank you, my friend."

$30,000 NEEDED For Newton Repairs

Newton city officials today learned it will cost at least $30,000 to replace piping in the $100,000 PWA Charlemont sewer project.

The pipe could not stand strain placed upon it.

Director of Public Works Richard H. Ellis and City Solicitor Joseph W. Bartlett plan to go to Washington to ask PWA authorities to pay 30 per cent of the repairs.

Discovery of the cracked pipes was made today.

City Hall Notes

The Blue Eagle lost his haunt at City Hall today when Mayor Mansfield ordered the NRA sign removed from the building. A message of welcome to visitors will be substituted for the appeal to "Support Roosevelt."

City Councilor Clement A. Norton urged Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin to follow the example of police officials and permit firemen to doff heavy dress uniform coats on warm days.

Mayor Mansfield today invited the Elks to hold their 1936 convention here. More than 100,000 visitors came here a decade ago when the organization last convened here.

Expenditures for welfare last week were $131,503 as compared with $130,021 in the previous week. In the same week one year ago the cost was $170,001.

HEIRESS To Wed Peer HERE

SCHRAFFT GIRL FALL BRIDE

Kathryn Schrafft, 25-year-old heiress to the $10,000,000 fortune of the late candy magnate, is returning to Boston next week, when she will begin plans for her October wedding to Sir Peter Griffin, London.

Miss Schrafft's indefinite plans were made public today by Mrs. William Shrafft, of Center Harbor, Vt., an aunt.

With Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Adams, of Brookline, lifelong friends of Miss Schrafft, she has been spending a few days in Mexico City, where Sir Peter, an official of an international oil company, has been stationed.

The romance between the titled Englishman and the American opera singer, began in the United States several months ago.

Miss Schrafft, who made such progress in singing in Milan, Italy, that a certain operatic future was predicted for her last year, flew to Mexico City two weeks ago.

Her mother, Mrs. F. Gilbert Vaughn, will return to Boston with her.

Relatives today told the Boston Evening American:

"It is not likely that Sir Peter will remain long in Mexico City, therefore we cannot say anything about their plans. They will probably be married here in October, that's all we know about it."

Miss Schrafft lives with her mother in her Center street home in Newton. It is there the nuptials will probably be celebrated.

Child 'Lost' In Closet

Brockton, July 23 — Armand Ducharme's grandpa, Walter Mellman, of Thatcher street, today telephoned police excitedly:

"I can't find Armand! Armand is missing!"

Immediately Brockton police mobilized.

Squads searched streets and alleys. Posses scoured woodland near Thatcher street. Detectives in pairs eyed all passing cars.

And—later—Armand's grandpa again telephoned the police:

"Armand is found! He was asleep in the closet of his own room—on the floor! Armand is three."

Blackmail Deferred

AT THE CONCLUSION of the interview with Spanish Maine, although it had lasted for over an hour, John Geste was unable to feel that he had made any headway or done any good. Save for this, the tone of conversation had been pleasant enough. He had found Senor Manoel Maine of easy address, agreeable manner and conversation, and, in all externals, a gentleman.

But he had come reluctantly to the conclusion that the man had indeed no higher nature to which to appeal; was devoid of bowels of compassion; and knew no mercy.

What he wanted and what he intended to have, and to have quickly, was money. Money in such quantity as the resources of his victims could provide.

Nor had John Geste obtained any satisfaction through pointing out that the blackmailer's secret was of value only so long as it was a secret, and that as soon as it was told, the blackmailer's power was ended.

The Blackmailer

"Quite so," Spanish Maine had agreed. "You are absolutely right Mr. Geste. If you have a horse to sell, you can sell it only while it is of value to somebody else, and no longer. Should it go permanently lame or die, well—you can't sell it. You can only give it away, gratis.

"The same applies to a secret or rather to silence concerning a secret. If my silence is of value, I can sell it; and I am willing to do so. If it is not of value, I cannot sell it, and there's an end of the matter. I can then only give it away, gratis.

"Am I to understand that it is a matter of indifference to your — ah — principals, friends, whether I tell my secret to Sir Harry Vane or not? If so, say so; and I shall give myself the pleasure of telling—and go my way."

"I doubt it," replied John Geste.

"But why not? Why not? Who's to hinder me? I've done no harm, no wrong. I have not broken your law, surely. I have merely mentioned that I have something for sale—my silence concerning a secret—and you can buy it or not, as you like."

"BUT suppose you did clearly grasp, completely realize and thoroughly understand, beyond shadow of a doubt, that neither Miss Vanbrugh nor her brother would, in any circumstances whatsoever, pay you one solitary farthing?" asked John Geste. "What would you gain by going to Sir Harry Vane with this tale?"

"Satisfaction." . . .

"And you call yourself a gentleman, a caballero, a hidalgo . . . ?

"Never mind what I call myself, Mr. Geste. I can tell you what I call Zara Blanchfleur, alias Consuela Vanbrugh. I can tell you what she did to me. And, in absolutely final answer to your question, I can tell you once again what I should gain by denouncing her to Sir Harry Vane. I should gain the gratification of knowing that I had got even with her—at last. And moreover, although I don't pretend for one moment that it is my primary motive, I should have the further satisfaction of knowing that I had done my duty."

"Your Duty!"

"Your duty!" shrugged John Geste.

"Yes. We all get a certain feeling of pleasure from knowing that we have done our duty—however painful—don't we? I have conceived a considerable liking and admiration for Sir Harry Vane; and I don't think it right that he should be allowed to marry this . . . this . . ."

"That will do," said John Geste quietly.

"THIS lady, I was going to say . . . without knowing rather more than she will have told him about her origin. I think he ought to know that I, for example, am an erstwhile lover of hers, a lover left disconsolate, jilted for—an Arab! For a native! a black man, as Sir Harry Vane would call him . . . And if I learned that I were not, of course, their first lover—but her hundred-and-first—I should not be surprised. On second thought, I should be surprised. A thousand-and-one would be nearer the mark—of her Arabian Nights Tale of . . ."

"Let's stick to your tale, please," interrupted John Geste, "I gather that you'd feel compelled to inform Sir Harry Vane, so that you might be avenged upon a girl for something she either has or has not done to you, and also in obedience to the dictates of your tender conscience."

"Exactly, My compliments, Mr. Geste, on the accuracy both of your understanding and your expression."

"Well, Mr. Maine, if it is your last word . . ."

"Absolutely."

"If that is your last word, I was going to say—I can only point out that you have not a monopoly of conscience."

Promises Delay

"Agreed, Mr. Geste. And, in return, you think over what I have said; and please understand—I don't abate one farthing of my reasonable demand."

"And how long a period do you give me in which to think it over? For I believe that Mr. and Miss Vanbrugh will take my advice and act as I suggest."

"Well, I am a busy man . . . What shall we say? A week?"

"Yes. A week. And you do faithfully promise that you will make no move, take no step, do nothing whatsoever in this matter, for a week?"

"Yes, I agree. But after that—no shilly-shallying."

"And I can trust you?"

"Word of a caballero. You can trust me. I give you my word of honor that I will neither say nor write anything whatsoever for a week. At the end of that time I shall consider myself free to repeat my demand for the last time and to act in accordance with the reply I get. A week. And there's my hand on it, Mr. Geste."

JOHN GESTE regarded the hand and, concealing his feelings, reluctantly took it.

"Very well, I'll tell my friends what you say. I'll give them the advice I think best; and you can ask them for their decision in a week's time.

"Incidentally, that being so, Mr. Maine, there is no need for you to remain any longer at the inn, is there? I don't wish to be rude, but we should all prefer it if you went away. Particularly Miss Vanbrugh."

"I am sure she would" smiled Spanish Maine pleasantly, showing bright teeth beneath his curling mustache. "I'm sure she would. Yes. I will go this evening."

"It would be wiser, I think," observed John Geste gravely, and rang the bell.

Your First Real Fall Frock

By ANNICE BRINK

ALL the advance fashion points you've been hearing about are in these two fall frocks, modeled for us by Miss Virginia Tolman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Tolman of Cohasset. Left, Veronese green satin with a scroll figure has gored front fullness, and a bit of bodice draping whose fullness comes from tucking that runs smoothly across the shoulders, nearly to the elbow. Rhinestone-ringed fringe of a light green ties at the throat. Right, a frock of crepe sheer gives itself over completely to the pleat idea. The ruffled bodice with an inset gilet of creamy satin steals a picturesque note from the Renaissance. And the daisy buttons are a whimsical modern touch. Both are budget frocks; for shopping details, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

SLEEK modernistic handbags in white patent leather, piped and lined with colored linen, are one of the ideas that help to brighten the summer. They are huge, capacious affairs, in either square or circular shapes, and are trimmed with shaped block initials in gold or silver finish metal.

An especially effective one is completely circular in shape, has dull gold initials on the white patent leather and is piped and lined in red linen. A handle of the linen is drawn through metal eyelets, and the whole is gaily in step with the season.

TO KNOW WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE

By RUBY AYRES

I HAVE so often been asked this question, by young and inexperienced girls, and sometimes by single women to whom love has come rather late in life: "But how do you know when you're in love?"

One very candid and regretful young lady even went so far as to add:

"I've often thought I've been in love, but it always turns out that I really wasn't."

Yes, that's just it; because when you are really in love you don't "think" about it at all, you just know that it's a fact and accept it for good or ill.

And then comes the eternal question—

"But how shall I know when I'm in love?"

Well, I'll tell you.

First of all it won't be necessary to ask me about it or anyone else, and then if the whole world stood up in rows and begged and implored—"Don't marry him, don't marry him" if you were in love you would become stone deaf, and would marry him even if you knew that it might not mean lasting happiness.

You can't kill a real love, any more than you can mistake it when it comes to you. And when it comes, there are a thousand, thousand signs by which you will recognize it.

Do you suddenly, and for no apparent reason, feel very young and happy and good-looking?—then you are in love.

Is there one man in the world who's voice makes your heart turn over and over? Is there one man for whose sake you will cheerfully get up at 6 o'clock on a dark, cold morning just to stand for five minutes on a cheerless platform in order to say good-bye to him? Is there one man at whose bidding you will fly to the ends of the earth if only you may be with him? Is there one man for whose sake you will face hardship and poverty and still be able to smile? Then if so, you are in love.

Real love never haggles, or stops to weigh up the for's or against's; it acts on the principle that what is good enough for the loved one is good enough to be shared. Love can not explain itself, and it does not try.

We see a million faces, and hear a million voices, and they do not touch us, and then we see one—no better or more beautiful than those who have passed, but the only one that will ever matter.

CROCHETED BERET AND PURSE PATTERN .1016

Be in style—let your accessories be crocheted—you'll be proud of your appearance if you do.

And what is more flattering than a beret?

This one combines comfort with beauty. The laciness of the band sets off the lines of popcorns that are its chief decoration. This design is repeated in the envelope purse that you will find so useful. You can make the set of string or yarn. And if you want to make a beret that will serve you right through fall, you need only draw a contrasting yarn through the lacy strip and you'll have one that is most comfortable for cool days.

Pattern 1016 comes to you with detailed directions for making the set shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements; color suggestions.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Department, 32 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Women's SIGNATURE PROBLEMS Again

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I recently received an invitation to a cocktail party made out as follows: Mrs. Waters Fair requests the honor of your presence," etc. Mrs. Fair is divorced from her husband, and has used on the above invitation her maiden name in connection with her former married name. Is this the correct name for a divorcee to use?

1. Yes, I'm most happy to be able to tell you that this woman who is divorced used precisely the correct form for her name on this formal invitation.

In her formal name, in other words, a divorcee should use the surname of her maiden name prefixed to the surname of her married name.

It is not at all good form for her to use her first name in her formal name, any more than it is good form for a married woman to use her first name in her formal name.

But I hope that you misquoted the "requests the honor of your presence." This is the form reserved for such invitations as that to a church marriage ceremony. The form for an invitation reads, "requests the pleasure of your company."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I intend to be married by a priest, privately, in the afternoon of a Sunday, soon.

1.—What would be the best time to have the reception; in the evening?

2.—I am inviting about three hundred guests to the reception. How would I suggest in the invitations that I do not wish them all to come at the same time?

3.—I am giving the reception in a public room. Please tell me if my husband and I and my parents and his parents should stand in the receiving line?

BRIDE-TO-BE.

1—The usual way is to have the reception directly after the ceremony. If you wish to have it later, choose an hour that will be convenient to your traveling plans.

2—In your invitations suggest, for instance, "four to seven" or "six to eight" or whatever hours you decide on.

3—The best and usual way is for your mother and father to stand first in the receiving line, since they are the hosts. Then the father and mother of the groom.

Then the groom, with the bride at his right, and then your maid of honor and bridesmaids, if you have bridesmaids.

GIRL, 16 WINS PRIZE FOR CUTTING DOWN RUNS

Read Story Below

RUN HOLDS UP PARTY—DAD GETS "FED UP"! Dad's pretty patient, but Bernice does get runs at the most annoying times! Everybody's ready for the yachting party—when a run pops—Bernice must dash home again for a change. "Why can't my daughter keep her stockings in order just once?" Mr. Kirkland wonders. "I'd be willing to give her a prize if she could solve this run nuisance—if it has a solution, which I doubt!"

"DAD'S OFFERED ME a wrist watch if I cut down runs," says Bernice, "and Helen says I'll win hands down if I change to Lux!" Lux saves stocking elasticity. Harsh soaps—cake-soap rubbing—weaken elasticity—runs start.

Victory! Prize Won!

Bernice and her Dad are thrilled. In three weeks Lux cut runs down almost to nothing. "Expect I'll make a profit on the cost of that watch," smiles Dad. He's right! Lux often cuts stocking bills in half. That's why thrifty girls use Lux!

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Man Who Does Not Declare Himself Is Selfish

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Perhaps you can explain this young man. I can't. He's an unsolved riddle to me.

We met four years ago at a wedding, when I was 18 and he was 25. He paid me such devoted attention that everyone thought our wedding would be the next, but during that time he has never said one word about marriage.

He has never asked me to drop my other men friends, but they dropped themselves, seeing how attentive he was to me. Now I'm beginning to wonder if he is what is called "a time-waster," or if he thinks his never mentioning marriage excuses his particular line of conduct.

I have a chance to go to Canada to visit some relatives of my father, and am beginning to think it might be a good time to break with this young man.

JANE.

A man does a great injustice to a girl when he monopolizes her and keeps away the other young men who might be serious when he has no intention of being serious himself. Such men pick out an attractive girl and are so devoted that everyone expects a wedding announcement, and when none comes, year after year, a girl gets to be like something with a marked-down tag on it.

I'm glad you've got a chance to go to Canada. Don't fail to take advantage of it, and here's hoping you find someone less selfish.

Cupid Sets the Stage

By Nell Brinkley

WHAT a very odd young person! Very beautiful, colorful, slim and young, down by the sea, ALL ALONE, and NOT seeming to mind it. She isn't a man-hater, she is too amiable-looking for that. She never was a wall-flower, any intent young man can see that the reason she is alone is NOT because there was no young man to dance attendance!

Setting—a wide blue sky with woolly clouds wandering over like sheep in a pale-blue meadow. Golden sand. Brown rocks, gulls flashing in the sun. The immensity of a romantic, seaside, summer landscape, and in the midst of it a Girl, in an Indian-print bathing outfit, alone. Contemplating a denizen of the deep, one sagey, side-winding crab! ("Of all things!" thinks Cupid.)

But Cupid is slowly setting the stage for romance, and who can tell, perhaps for marriage! For among the young males who are beginning to decorate the offing there may be the ultimate HERO.

Wait 'til the crab nips her pink toe—and the feminine call for help follows!

Given IN Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 402

THERE WAS so much conviction in Ronald's voice—a conviction amounting, I saw, to actual fear for the safety of Marion—that I did not try to combat his intuition that he did not wish his stepfather to be in Marion's company, unless he himself was with her, at least until after her eighteenth birthday and the opening of the lock-box.

MADGE AIDS RONALD

"I think you are wrong in your suspicions, Ronald," I began, and was surprised at the intensity with which he turned on me.

"You don't mean," he whispered hoarsely, "that you'd approve of her going with—"

I put my hand over his mouth. "Please let me finish." I said sternly, although I smiled at him as I spoke. "I thoroughly approve of the girls driving back with you and Bob, and I shall do my best to see that Mrs. Underwood shares my approval. Does that satisfy you?"

"Oh!" Ronald said chokingly. "You know it does!"

"All right. Then come back with me now to the living room, and mind you play up to everything I say. And don't broach the subject to Carolyn and Marion going with you until I put my hair back with this gesture."

A PRECAUTION

"I'll watch you ever so closely," he said, and without further delay we went back into the living room where Dicky was obviously "making talk," in an effort to act as buffer between Lillian and Samuel Brixton.

"Oh! There you are, Ron," Mr. Brixton said with the affection in his voice which is always apparent when he speaks to his stepson." I was just wondering about your classes for next week. Will you have any on Saturday, or will your mother and I be able to pick you up Friday night when we drive down from the farm? Mrs. Underwood says that she and her husband are going to drive down to Whitney Hall for the girls next Friday, so we can all meet here that night. It will be very cozy."

PREPARED STORY

"Neither Bob nor I have Saturday classes, sir," Ronald said, "and we shall be ready to join you Friday night."

"What is it, Marion?" Lillian looked past Ronald to the doorway, and we all turned to see her young daughter, as lovely a picture as ever was framed by a doorway, patiently waiting to speak to some one of us.

"Why, I'm wondering about going back. I thought you and dad were going to drive Carolyn and me back to school, but Mr Brixton said just now that he thought you were so busy with everything that you wouldn't be able to, and that he and Mrs. Brixton would drive us down; so I thought I'd better ask you."

I think the same thought flashed to each of us at once. In some way Samuel Brixton had found out about the presence of the gagged and bound Chinese in the farm house, and knew that with Hugh and Lee Chow seriously injured, and Dicky with a "game" arm, Harry Underwood and my father must not leave the farm house under any circumstances.

"Mrs. Underwood," Ron said eagerly, "if the girls are willing, couldn't Bob and I drive them down to Whitney Hall? It would save you and mother a long drive, sir"—he turned respectfully to his stepfather—"and"—his eyes were agin fixed upon Lillian—"we would be so glad to do it."

Pushed Beyond Probability

Today's hand took place in a rubber game in which North and South had been having all the advantage of the cards when Fate dealt them another fine hand.

They pushed it beyond its probable limits, and as such things happen when the gods are kindly disposed, North managed, by fine play, to make the hand.

North, Dealer.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
3 ◇	3 ♠ (1)	4 ♣ (2)	Pass
4 NT (3)	Pass	5 ♣ (4)	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	6 ♢ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) Not vulnerable and trying to save what looked like a large losing rubber.

(2) Probably this second free bid is not justified by South's strength.

(3) Conventional.

(4) A conventional sign-off.

(5) This was a wild bid based on some devious reasoning. Because North failed to support clubs, South thought he might have none or at most a singleton and probably had the Ace of spades.

East opened the Ace of spades and, receiving a high one from his partner, continued with the second round of that suit, which North ruffed.

Apparently the hand offered little hope, but when after extracting three rounds of trumps North laid down the Ace of clubs, East's blank King dropped.

Making the contract now depended either on a successful heart finesse or, if West had the Queen of hearts, a squeeze. A club was led to the Queen and a low heart returned.

West put up the ten and North's King won the trick. He played four rounds of diamonds, coming down to the twelfth trick with a low club and a low heart.

Dummy had the Ace-Jack of hearts and West had a hopeless discard to make from the Queen and one heart and the Jack of clubs.

To discard the club would have been to give up all hope, so West properly threw the low heart, hoping declarer would take the finesse.

But declarer had noted the earlier play of the heart ten and decided West must also have the Queen. He led a low heart, went up with the Ace and won the last trick and rubber with the heart Jack.

Beauty Answers to Readers' Queries

Question—I am a young girl of 19 and lately have been bothered greatly by an excessive amount of oil around my nose, chin and cheeks. It really is exasperating because I no sooner apply make-up than it is entirely absorbed by the oil. I realize that during the period of adolescence skins are apt to be oily. Now, my question is this: Do you think I should use any preparations to counteract this condition or should I let my skin alone?

Self-Conscious, Chelsea.

Answer—If you have an excessively oily skin you must begin corrective work from the interior. Local care is only half the story. If you are constipated, and so many people with oily skins are, take immediate measures to correct faulty bowel action. Use plenty of soap to remove the excess oil from your skin, before it has a chance to solidify and form ugly little blackheads. By all means apply astringents to counteract the oiliness, but under no conditions apply skin foods, nourishing or cleansing creams which are meant to furnish lubrication for dry skins. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will be glad to furnish you with the names of three excellent astringents for your type of skin. They will not only remove excess oil, but will contract the pores.

Question—I am a constant reader of your articles and find them most interesting. You mentioned in one of your recent articles about a cream that would fatten the tissues of the arms and bust. Would that cream be of any use for fattening the calves of the legs?

Mrs. Rose M. L., North Weymouth.

Answer—Yes, indeed, the fattening cream of which I wrote recently is very good for fattening the calves of the legs. Since you did not enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope in your nice letter, I must ask you to write to me again for the name of this cream. As you perhaps do not know, I cannot mention trade names here.

Anti-Mosquito Cream

Instantly Drives Away Insects

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

IT TAKES the good old summer-time to turn a woman into something of a connoisseur.

No matter whether she plans her days of relaxation on a white, wind-swept beach, by a snow-capped peak, a lake, a river, or in an ocean breeze—she doesn't want all joy lost by battling hordes of insects and mosquitoes.

Leave it to those rabid weekenders who move from Bar Harbor to White Sulphur Springs as the season changes, to stumble upon a delightful new discovery.

It's a brand-new lavender scented anti-mosquito cream and if we can believe the stories which chic ladies have brought back from England (where it was created) it gives complete immunity from bites of all kinds.

While it is quite likely that you may enjoy its fragrance, mosquitoes are said to loathe it. It comes in a tube, and looks for all the world like a white, vanishing cream. When you rub it on, it disappears without leaving a trace. There is no greasiness, no stickiness, and nothing to soil your clothes.

It should be applied freely to wrists and ankles—parts which are most susceptible to attack. However, since it is non-toxic and entirely non-deleterious to the skin, it can be used with perfect confidence on the face.

Best of all, it is really delightful to use. Unlike other bite preventatives it carries no offensive or sickly smell. On the contrary the lavender scent forms a refreshing covering odor to the active principle contained within.

Naturally this preparation does not kill insect pests. But it does create an atmosphere they abhor. Experiments carried out in the notoriously mosquito-infested regions of the Cameroons in West Africa established the fact that one application will afford immunity from attack for a period of four hours.

Those of you who fall easy prey to mosquito and other summer-time pests, won't be able to get along without it, once you have used it. It is unbelievably inexpensive considering it is sponsored by a famous cosmetic house which was founded in London way back in 1749. Country hostesses who carry on in the grand manner should have several tubes handy for house guests.

To learn the name of this concentrated lavender anti-mosquito vanishing cream, call Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Summer Handbags

Summer handbags in envelope style with removable linen covers are popular just now. You may have a set of covers in assorted colors, one to match each costume, and have them always fresh from the laundry, a welcome idea for those disillusioned as to the practicality of so-called washable leather handbags.

* * *

A costume seen recently at a swank beach club consisted of wide brimmed white straw Spanish sombrero, white shirt and high waisted, bell-bottom trousers of navy blue.

THERE'S nothing like a slithery, shiny satin dress to buck up a willing summer wardrobe, and just now they're showing some whoop-la ones.

Pastel printed satins, in pale, watery designs are new and exciting for evening. Mauve prints on a petal pink ground, and pale blue printed in raspberry are favorite color mergers.

Why don't you "pop in" on someone tonight? Call a distant member of your family, to whom you really owe some word. Or a friend, not so far away, but too far to visit in person.

UTILITY LOBBY WIRE 'SIGNED' BY DEAD MAN

By Associated Press

Washington, July 23—Testimony that one of 766 messages sent from York, Pa., opposing the "dead climate in the Utilities Holding Company bill was "signed" by a man who had been dead about two years was received today by the Senate Lobby Committee.

This was given by Luther A. Coleman, Postal Telegraph manager at York for 28 years, after Chairman Black had said persons from "all over the United States" had denied sending anti-utility bill telegrams to which their names had been attached.

Black said the matter might be referred to the communications commission because it "will be impossible for the committee to go into every case, even those received up to date."

HOW THEY GOT NAMES

Guy C. Haller, York representative of the Associated Gas & Electric Company, testified that the names of the anti-utility bill telegrams from that city had been furnished him by E. A. Barnitz, vice president of the York Railway Company, from a list of its employes.

Coleman, the York telegraph manager, testified that of the 766 telegrams sent from his office all but five had been paid for by the Metropolitan Edison Company, a subsidiary of the Associated Gas & Electric Company.

He was asked if he recognized any signers of the messages.

He called off several names, including a Charles A. Small, but he said Small had been dead "about two years."

HOUSE PROBE BEGUN

Representative Driscoll (D.-Pa.) read into the record a letter from G. E. Walters of Warren, Pa., saying he had been approached by representatives of the Associated Gas and Electric Company and the Western Union who asked him if it were "not possible" he had authorized the use of his name on a telegram concerning the holding company. The writer asserted he had not.

Chairman O'Connor (D.-N. Y.) meanwhile disclosed the House rule committee has put investigators to work in New York, Chicago and Atlanta digging up information for its utilities lobby investigation.

He declined to say, however, what prompted the sudden field work, it was assumed the committee was building up its case for inquiries into activities of private utility interest against the utilities bill.

LEGAL BETTING FIGHT PLEDGED FOR BOOKIES

A court fight to establish the legal standing of race betting commissioners was forecast today.

William H. McMaster, president of the Pari-Mutuel Betting Service, whose application for a corporation charter was rejected on the ruling of Attorney-General Dever, appeared at the State House to see Governor Curley.

He said he was seeking a conference between the governor, Dever and Secretary of State Cook and that if Dever's opinion is not reversed he will apply to the court for a writ of mandamus to compel the granting of the charter.

McMaster's organization proposes to accept betting commissions from persons who do not attend the horse and dog races and lay these wagers at the track.

He estimated that $1,000,000 a day is being bet in Massachusetts —a large amount of it with illegal bookmakers who have no standing under law, do not place the money at the tracks and do not pay track odds on winners.

By legalizing his proposed service, the tracks and the state will receive the benefit of the "take" from this increased play, he said.

TOWNSEND PWA FRAUD CHARGED

Charges of fraud and other irregularities in connection with a $25,000 PWA project in Townsend became known at the federal building today.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. B. Cartier went before the grand jury with witnesses and information purporting to show that workmen employed on the Townsend project were losing large sums of money by payroll padding.

Ten days ago the grand jury investigated a PWA project in Chelsea and another in Revere. Out of that investigation came indictments against a Boston contracting firm.

Pantless Traveler On Tour

A red-haired boy, two-and-a-half years of age, set out on a long safari in the Back Bay today — clad in nothing but his undershirt.

Toddling across Arlington street in front of Hotel Statler, he stopped traffic in both directions and was rescued by Patrolman Martin Cummings. Cummings hid him in a traffic box for a time, then took him to Station 4 for lack of claimants.

At the station the adventurer refused to give his name and address or state whether his panties were lost, strayed or stolen. He ate ice cream and made houses with dominoes while waiting for a frantic parent.

The parent arrived some time later—Mrs. Thelma Osolin of Clarendon street. She said the lad was Herbert and that he had vanished from his crib.

CHAMP BEER GUZZLER

Dares All to Frothy Duel

By Associated Press

Baltimore, July 23—Emil Cella, 30-year-old Italian with an astonishing capacity for food and drink, today challenged all comers to a beer-guzzling contest.

For, said Cella, he had beaten the national record recently set at Milwaukee by five seconds and therefore was just about the best beer drinker in the whole United States.

The wiry little Italian's accomplishment was the more remarkable in that it came shortly after he had primed himself with six hard crabs, two plates of spaghetti and a quart of milk.

His feat was performed last night at the Eastern Democratic Club. At 8 p. m. Cella drank a half-gallon of brew in 34 seconds, two over the Milwaukee record. At 10 p. m. he downed a half-gallon in 27.6 seconds.

Between his two attempts, Cella quaffed beer, explaining the more he imbibed the faster he could drink.

"Wait until midnight," he said, "and I drink a half-gallon in 15 seconds. I challenge the whole United States. I beat 'em all."

Cella celebrated his feat by drinking more beer and admitted he was an accomplished eater as well.

"Once I eat six fried chickens at a sitting," he said. "Crabs I go for, too. The small ones I eat sometimes shell and all. I even eat grass, I eat iron. But cucumbers—cucumbers, I can't eat."

GRADUATED TAX AIDS WIDOWS

By Associated Press

Washington, July 23—House Ways and Means Committee Democrats agreed today upon an inheritance tax plan which would apply lower rates to widows, sons and daughters than to others and raise in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 a year.

The committee agreed that up to $50,000 left to sons, daughters and widows should be exempt while only $10,000 left to other persons or institutions should be free from taxes.

The first $10,000 over the $50,000 left to immediate kin, however, would be taxed 4 per cent, the levy ranging to a maximum of 75 per cent on all over $10,000,000.

On those not related by blood to the decedent the initial tax would be 4 per cent on the first $10,000 over the exempted $10,000.

RETTICH MUST SERVE TERM

Carl Rettich, and his machine-gunner, John (Dummy) McGlone, were preparing today to leave for Atlanta for a long, long time.

Sentenced, with three others, to 25 years in the penitentiary for robbing a Fall River mail truck of $120,000 six months ago, they learned today that they were assigned to the Georgia institution.

What disposition would be made of "Tough" Tommy Duggan, "One-Eye" Charles Harrigan, both New York pals of McGlone, and of Joseph Fisher, Providence public enemy, was to be learned later today.

Under a new ruling, the United States Attorney General is given the task of deciding to which penitentiaries federal prisoners will be sent. In this case the decision rests with Homer S. Cummings.

Three other federal jails likely to receive one each of the other three defendants are Lewisburg, Pa., Leavenworth, Kas., and Alcatraz, Cal.

The sentence was considered by many to be lighter than was expected, as an additional two-year sentence for conspiracy to rob was made to run concurrently.

Detroit Warms Up An Old Baseball Hate

BEFORE LEAVING BOSTON to engage the Yankees in a hand to hand battle for the American League lead, Mr. Mike Cochrane, the truculent, cocky manager of the Detroit Tigers, told me that Detroit had gone hick town again over his team.

Austen Lake

This has the same ominous ring that an Indian uprising must have had to the early settlers of the West. Until you have seen the inmates of Detroit whooping it up, you have never seen a malignant case of baseball fever, which is something like the dancing sickness in which the patients whirl and leap until they fall from exhaustion and are swept up by the sanitary crew lest they expire and mortify in the streets.

The peoples of New York are used to winning pennants and therefore have come to regard them with a blase disposition as nothing more than a local show troup, but the Detroit inmates are home town apologists and free lance managers who mourn their losses with a heft of woes, or burn crates and barrels to celebrate their victories.

In the heat of a pennant fight, like this, a Tiger defeat is a civic calamity which calls for hanging crepe-rosettes on the public buildings as manifestation of the people's grief.

* * *

Baseball's Rodeo

I HAVE NEVER SEEN a city so swept away by the tide of its emotion as Detroit during World Series time last October, when the natives swarmed around the Book-Cadillac Hotel, standing until their feet hurt on the bare chance of glimpsing a visiting Cardinal player come out for a snuff of fresh air.

They stood thus in a dense horseshoe, marshalled by horse guards, and never seeming to take time off to eat, but just teetering the day away in mute gaping at the hotel facade and imagining the private lives of the athletes within.

There were the nozzles of radio loud-speakers thrust through the transoms of stores, bootblack stands, food parlors and barber shops, so that the citizens could attend the series by ear.

It was a scene like the New Orleans Mardi Gras, except that the people did not walk around in ruffled nightgowns and rubber noses, blowing paper snakes at each other and going into orgies of maudlin madness in broad daylight.

* * *

Detroit Hates Harder Than St. Louis

BEING VERY DEVOUT toward his baseball and given to much inward squirming, the Detroit citizen is inclined to spasms of hysteria, so that if disappointed he will hit you with a hatchet if he has a hatchet in his hand.

There is nothing jovial in his anger, as with the St. Louis citizens, who used to shower the field with bottles and seat cushions while wreathing their faces in cheery smiles. I have sat in the mezzanine press box in the old days when St. Louis was reckoned the Balkans of baseball, when the residents scaled their sitting pillows on the necks of the visiting press as a vague protest against some decision on the field.

There was an air of geniality about this, which sprung roars of laughter when a cushion bounced off some writer's skull and went winging away.

But in Detroit's historic tantrum during the seventh game of the last Series, the anger of the people sounded less like the dull buss of the bees than like an amplified hum of hornet hate. And until Judge Landis, in his ringside box, wrote an extemporaneous decision and, contrary to the articles of baseball law, sacrificed the Cardinal Left Fielder to popular wrath, the Detroit bigots were like to have zipped down the restraining screens and killed somebody.

* * *

Detroit Will Go Armed

ANOTHER PENNANT VICTORY for the St. Louis Cardinals would please Detroit only slightly less than a pennant victory for the Tigers. Because the people, according to Cochrane, are still smarting from their old October wounds and view a renewal of the games as a Holy War in which the pious will pilgrim to Navin Field armed with scrap iron and concrete chunks of throwing size.

But, being accustomed to pennants, St. Louis has suffered a case of pernicious tolerance toward its rivals in late seasons. In 1926 when they won their first championship under Rogers Hornsby, they stormed the downtown streets until early morning and left their autos dead where they died from excessive sounding of their sirens and burning out their batteries.

* * *

St. Louis Apathetic Toward No. 5

Last year St. Louis took its fifth championship with deplorable calm, burning no victory fires in Olive street and ringing no glad tidings from church belfries. The only let-go was from the Arkansas hillmen who came up to honor the Dean brothers and Schoolboy Rowe as fellow natives, with saloon fighting and window yodeling.

The Arkansans came in hordes, men with wide brimmed, flat-top hats and set about having a year's fun in two days. The Series was only an excuse for a miniature revival of Armistice night and most of them bottle drank all night and slept through game time, reviving in the late evening to bottle drink the night out again.

Their wild West was confined to the Jefferson Hotel, however, and few of the St. Louis folk, who stayed home and read their papers in a routine evening, ever heard about the Arkansans except through newspaper jottings about the increased number of visitors who were being treated for alcoholism.

I think Detroit ought to be warned about St. Louis apathy, lest they waste their hate on an unappreciative people.

THERE MAY BE GLOOM IN MUDVILLE—BUT

The mighty Casey flopped in a pinch but you are now gazing at a mightier "Casey," Mr. Wes Ferrell who has lately developed an annoying habit of popping homers in the last of the ninth to break up ball games. He won his own in the Browns' opener and picked up another for his pal, Grove, the day before. There may be gloom in Mudville but there is great joy in Boston today. Our vote for the most valuable man of the year goes to Mr. Wesley Ferrell. The win yesterday, incidentally, was Ferrell's 15 which is more than any other hurler in the American League and the only National Leaguer to equal this string of victories is Dizzy Dean. It seems, also, that just a couple of years ago, the word went around that Wes was all done as a pitcher and he could not hit consistently enough to be an outfielder.

'I'll Beat Danno' Says George

By Bob Kenefick

Ed Don George is rapidly nearing complete preparation for his title match on July 30 with Boston's adopted son, Danno O'Mahoney.

The mighty son of Michigan has been engaging in daily workouts at his Nantasket Beach training camp and he confided to the writer that he is certain he will down Danno.

"I've trained very seriously for this O'Mahoney match," said the mat champion. "You know it is my outstanding match of the year.

"The idea of two champions, although really I have the only just claim, has always hindered wrestling, and now, at last, there will be but one titleholder following this O'Mahoney match.

"I feel confident that I will defeat O'Mahoney decisively for several reasons; first of all, I am now in the best shape that I have ever reached, and secondly, because of my experience built up during my 13 years of competition.

"My biggest advantage over O'Mahoney will be in experience. This experience, possibly the most important factor in a hard match, will surely counteract the great strength and courage that this young Irishman seems to possess."

With an all-star preliminary card headed by Jim Browning and Chief Little Moose in the semi-final, the show is sure to break all attendance records. Reservations were being received from northern Maine and Montreal, where Danno has become an idol and the single day's sale was close to $3000.

Fans are advised to make ticket purchases early, either at Promoter Bowser's office, 115 Chauncy st., Room 204, Braves Field or at 264 Washington st., Newspaper row. Tickets are popularly priced at $1, $2, $3 and $5.

OUTBOARD

Aces Rule REGATTA

By Ed Schriftgiesser

When the judges' stand is erected on the shores of the Charles River Basin for the big outboard motor boat regatta on August 10 and 11, it will shelter a nationally distinguished group of officials.

Headed by Charles F. Chapman, best known speed boat referee in the country, the race committee will include starters, judges and timers whose wide experience guarantees perfect functioning of the two-day series.

The national sanction accorded the regatta by the American Power Boat Association, and the generous cash prizes and trophies offered by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, have attracted a field unequalled in any recent outboard event.

Among the officials who have agreed to be on deck is T. M. Russell of Middletown, Conn., national surveyor for the A. P. B. A. His approval of the course, which will be laid out by engineers of the Metropolitan District Commission, assures official recognition of any speed records made on the Basin.

Earl Moulton of Worcester and Ed Grady of Boston will officiate as chief timers, with Frank Wiggleworth at the chronometer.

IRWINS Play Cubs

A complete revision of the Boston Twilight League schedule for the week was made today. Tonight's games will remain as originally set, however, with the Middlesex Laundry at Miller Oil, Waltham Bike Park; C. M. A. C. at Arlington, and the Mayor Irwin Club against the Cambridge Cubs at Thorndike Park, East Cambridge.

The remainder of the week's schedule includes: Tomorrow, Miller Oil at Lynch Club, Cambridge Field; Jefferson Club at Middlesex Laundry South Acton.

AGAWAM OFF To Poor Start

Agawam, Mass., July 23 (AP)—A sharp thundershower marred the ceremony with which construction of the new Agawam horse racing track was started yesterday afternoon. Pitcher Ferrell Wins Twice With Homers in 9th

Hose Hurler Real One-Man Baseball Team

By Joe Cashman

By Joe Cashman

Were the most valuable major league player to be chosen today, it would be a cinch to make the decision.

Nobody could come close to tieing Wesley Cheek Ferrell.

The Red Sox pitching and slugging ace comes the closest to being a one-man team as anybody the game has ever produced.

He can pitch. He can hit. He can field. He can run. He's fearless. He's tireless. He loves to play.

He's never tried imitating the Four Hawaiians. But if it would help the Sox any, he'd undoubtedly try it and meet with fair success.

Consider some of Wesely's recent feats

Not supposed to work more than once in four days, according to the rules of the pitchers' union, he's hooked into the lineup of the past five games at the Fens.

Two 9th Homers

He won the last two games with ninth-inning home runs.

He went nine innings on the mound in the opener against the Tigers. He was back the next day as a pinch-hitter. He produced a pinch-hit double in the seventh on Saturday and pitched the two following frames.

He yielded but seven hits to the St. Louis Browns in the opener of the current four-game series and then stepped up in the ninth to gain a 2-1 verdict by belting a round-tripper over the left field wall at almost the same spot but higher than his Sunday pinch circuit drive.

And Wes is not playing over his head. He's been the same standout performer since the race started.

His triumph over the Brownies was his 15th of the season.

Tied With Dizzy

That gives him just a third of the Sox total of triumphs to date, two more games than any other American League pitcher has won and leaves him tied with Dizzy Dean for the major league lead.

With a mark of .365 he leads all American League hitters who have played in a dozen games or more.

But with all his ability, the temperamental Tarheel's greatest asset is his will to win and his ability to instill that spirit in his mates. He has only to stick his blond head in the picture and the Fenway flock instantly changes from just another ball club to one of the toughest outfits in the league to beat.

Without the blond Carolinan, the Sox would be deep in the second division. With him, they remain a serious pennant threat.

Ordinarily, the Croninmen have so much confidence in Wesley they make him a flock of runs and enable him to win under wraps.

It was different in the opener against the Browns.

Dick Coffman had our heroes pretty well handcuffed until Mr. Ferrell took matter in his own hands.

In fact, the visitors took the lead in the fourth and when the Sox, after tieing the count in the sixth, twice failed to get over the winning run with the bases loaded and only one out, it looked like extra innings until Wes propelled his fifth homer of the season over the barrier.

Manse Tom Yawkey has never revealed what he paid Cleveland for Ferrell.

Whatever the amount, the Indians were cheated.

Tribe Wins

After 15 Straight N. L Defeats

Cincinnati, July 23—Two losing streaks ended when Boston's Braves came from behind to defeat the Reds, 4 to 2

The victory snapped the 15-game losing streak of the Braves and also broke the 16-game streak of Ben Cantwell, Brave hurler. Although relieved by Bob Smith in the eighth, Cantwell was credited with the victory.

A pinch-double by Mowry in the eighth secured the tying run and winning runs for the Braves.

Stakes Lures ACE FIELD

Narragansett Park, R. I., July 23—Crack two-year-olds from the East and West will clash in the $5000 Shawomet Stakes, the six-furlongs dash on August 17, major test for juveniles at the second Narragansett Park meeting running 30 days from August 12.

Forty-four baby thoroughbreds have been named for this race, according to the nominations released by Racing Secretary Pat Horgan here today.

Included in the Shawomet's list are E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow, double winner in Chicago; Ogden Phipps' Youthful Stakes winner, White Cockade; Maemere Stable's fleet Maeriel and Mrs. A. Phillips' Jair; Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Postage Due and Speed.

Wheatley Stable's Snark and Seabiscuit; Robt. Robertson's Bright and Early; Mrs. Walter E. O'Hara's Undulate; a fast unnamed colt owned by the Kentucky breeder, R. W. Collins; Hal Price Headley's Florida star, Sparta; and the far Western star Procilivity, from the Northway Stable.

Only three two-year-olds have taken advantage of the first all-ages test of the year, which is the six furlongs $5000 added Weybosset Handicap, on September 2. They are Hal Price Headley's Night Alarm, Maemere's Maeriel and Mrs. A. Phillips' Jair. The remaining 27 named are older horses, which number all the stars of the New England sprint division.

PALMA WILSON'S BEST AT SUFFOLK

Marmion Wilson's Best Bet of Day

By Dave Wilson
Selections Made for Fast Track

BEST BET—MARMION

Suffolk Downs, East Boston, July 23—Palma, a sweet running filly from the Belair stud, is favored in this corner to romp off with the heavy sugar in the $3000 added Paul Revere, one mile feature of an eight race card of unusual merit here tomorrow afternoon.

Marmion, a one-time handicap star, appears to stand out like the proverbial sure thumb, over an indifferent lot of lowly platers in the one mile and seventy yards of the eighth number. He rates the best bet on the card.

FIRST—SKY PIRATE, BROWBEATEN, MANNERLY

SKY PIRATE, up against it in recent starts, is well suited by all the conditions here. The fleet son of Canter apparently needs only smooth handling in order to grace the winner's circle. BROWBEATEN has been resting up since Rockingham, and he is coming up sharp and good. Past performances indicate that he will be a stout factor. MANNERLY, a surprise winner last trip, must be accorded better than a fighting chance on the strength of that effort.

SECOND—GLYNDON BELLE, KING'S PLEASURE, CURRANTS

GLYNDON BELLE, on general form, shapes up all over the class. She has been freshened up slightly, and is coming up on swords edge. A duplicate of any one of her good efforts at Waiter O'Hara's track is all that is needed in order to insure brackets. KING'S PLEASURE, fast and faint-hearted, is dropping down a few pegs. He is strictly the one to fear. CURRANTS is endowed with a smattering of class and has the Clocker's stamp of approval.

THIRD—CAERLEON, IMA GREENOCK, CANCEL

CAERLEON, a corking third to Treasury Key on Saturday, has only to duplicate that performance in order to be the first to catch the judges' eye in an event of this sort. IMA GREENOCK is coming up a "rod-hot" clocker's tip. The Jack Howard filly has been burning up the track in the mornings. A handy mile in 1.43 3 concluded her training. CANCEL appears to outclass the others.

FOURTH—CROWDED HOURS, HAPPY HELEN, EASIEST WAY

Just can't give CROWDED HOURS the go by here. The handsome son of St. James is the most improved horse on the grounds. He tapped off his training with a blazing mile in 1.40, the first six panels in 1:14. HAPPY HELEN served notice that she was not far away from top form by finishing third in a swiftly run sprint 1st trip. The increased distance will be to her advantage and she shapes up as the stoutest sort of a contender. EASIEST WAY is in tip-top form and may upset the above calculations.

FIFTH—HARDWARE, BOLD LOVER, LADFIELD

HARDWARE figures to reverse the tables on BOLD LOVER under the weight arrangements here. The Flemming trained thoroughbred was all but knocked down turning into the homestretch that day, but once given clear sailing he closed with a rush, to be beaten less than two lengths for all the money. He will be favored by a two-pound shift in weights tomorrow. BOLD LOVER, despite his added impost, is strictly the one to drub. A mile in 1:39.4 handily for a final. LADFIELD, a class performer in the West, is reported fit and ready by the clockers.

SIXTH—PALMA, VANDERBILT ENTRY, MOTTO

PALMA is tossed in here under a feather of 104 pounds. Taking a line through her recent second to Bold Lover, she figures to stand a world of beating with an even shake of racing luck. GOOD HARVEST, PURPLE KNIGHT and SANCTITY, which will run coupled as the Vanderbilt entry, round out as a mighty dangerous trio. All three are performers of class and are coming up in the proverbial pink. MOTTO figures next best.

SEVENTH—PAPER PROFITS ,SOUND MONEY, RACCOON

PAPER PROFITS, a winner at this park over a fair field is awarded the preference over an indifferent lot here. Takes up only 108 pounds and it seems just a question of her repeating her last to make it two straight. SOUND MONEY can do better than his last indicates. This is a hard hitting veteran which will be a tough customer to down. RACCOON has worked well since arriving from Detroit where he was a good winner. In the event of mud he will be mighty hard to stop as he is a bear in the going. THREE DAGGERS is certainly not out of it. Holds a real good chance.

EIGHTH—MARMION, HIGHEST POINT, EDDIE WRACK

MARMION should win the final if sent back after yesterday's outing. The Abel racer outclasses this field and will win as far as I can throw a ball if he runs his race. HIGHEST POINT turned in a cracking good attempt behind Fancy Flight the other day and that performance stamps him next best. EDDIE WRACK is a greatly improved plater that will be troublesome on present fine endeavors. Mud would move him up. STARE worked three-quarters in 1:16 for this and may come in for strong support.

Sandy Hare Springfield Favorite

West Springfield, July 22—As a result of his long shot victory last time out, Sandy Hare breaks into fast company tonight at the Crescent Kennel Club's oval, and will go for the goal a favorite in the eighth race.

Government Loan, nosed out by Bad Louise last out will have a chance to retrieve his laurels when the two hook up with the popular dough on them in the sixth race, with Thunder Storm and Dainty Romance ready to cause plenty of trouble.

Dykes Runs Wild To Top Old Pals

Philadelphia, July 23 (US)—Jimmy Dykes, 38-year-old manager-third baseman of the Chicago White Sox, ran wild on the base paths to help his charges trounce the Athletics 12 to 3.

The former Athletic star made a daring steal of home in the second inning and pilfered another base later in the game.

The Chisox hit freely off five Mack pitchers, collecting 14 hits, including a four-bagger by Al Simmons. Higgins and Johnson hit home runs for the losers.

JOHNSON DAY, Win Celebration

Washington, July 23 (US)—Cleveland's Indians celebrated "Walter Johnson Day" by handing the Senators a 6-to-4 defeat.

With the sacks loaded in the ninth inning, and two runs already across, Willis Hudlin forced Strange to hit into a double play, ending the game.

Earl Averill led the Indian batters with "four for four."

Mrs. Andrus Defeated at Seabright

By Associated Press

Seabright, N. J, July 23—Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Ct., and New York was eliminated in the second round of the Seabright invitation tennis tournament today by Pretty Crayon Wheeler of Santa Monica, Cal., 6—2, 6—4.

Miss Wheeler played canny tennis all the way, forcing Mrs. Andrus out of position and then passing her cleanly with forcing shots at the net. Mrs. Andrus was the third favorite to pass out of the tournament, the Baroness Maud Levi of New York and Jane Sharp of Pasadena having been eliminated in the first round yesterday.

Mrs. Agnes Sherwood Lamms of Rye, N. Y., conqueror of Miss Sharp in the opening round, was herself eliminated by Mrs. MarJorie Gladman Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—4

Mrs. Van Ryn's next opponent will be top-seeded Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., who put out Mrs. Lillian S. Hester of Brooklyn, 6—0, 6—3.

Other favorites who moved ahead were Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2; Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, winner last year and seeded No. 3; Mrs. Mary Prentiss Harris of Kansas City, and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind.

Eunice Dean, Texas girl who eliminated Baroness Levi, was ousted by Mrs. Henry C. Burnie of New York, 6—4, 6—2.

"MAGIC EYE" AGAIN

International News Photos' remarkable "magic eye" camera visited Bostwick Field to capture some of the finer points of polo. This unusual set of photographs reveal the fine horsemanship and wonderful mallet work of Cecil Smith, star international polo player and nine goal man. Smith hits the ball for longer drives than any other player in the game. Starting at the top, from left to right, we see two players riding down on the ball, J. P. Mills, an eight-goal man, is on the left and he is being "ridden out" by Smith.

VETERAN RIDER AT SUFFOLK

FISHER ON DERBY WINNER

By Walter Kiley

Years have been kind to Sammy Fisher, 77 years old now, but with eye clear as the mountain brooklet, hand steady and strong as the day he carried his mount to victory over the Kentucky Derby finish line, and back straight and unbowed by the parade of passing seasons.

Few younger 'uns will remember Sammy Fisher.

His glamorous deeds, his daredevil reckless courage, his fearlessness are, however, part of the lore which have been passed down through the decades of thoroughbred racing.

Born to the leather, a son of the saddle, before he was hardly out of his swaddling clothes, Fisher wrote riding history.

Along with those other great rivals of his back in the 19th century, Tod Sloane and Snapper Garrison, he has since become one of those legendary figures who will live in memory as long as the thoroughbred flattens its belly to the racing strip.

Fisher at Downs

He is at Suffolk Downs now, a recent rival. And many are the old-time chinfests which he enjoys with Racing Secretary Frank J. Bryan, an intimate of boyhood days, a couple of old-timers who refuse to grow old or lose interest in a game in which their hearts and minds are still and always will be young.

Unusual contrast to most former greats is Fisher who sees the jockey of today as tremendously improved over those of his age.

In fact he utters almost anathema, for comparisons of such nature are in most instances dynamite, your elders seldom being able to see the present generation of sporting figures in a class with the performers of the past.

Rode 36 Years

"The riders of today are almost 200 per cent improved over those of my day," states Fisher.

"Today they have training and advantages which we never enjoyed. They have legislation and supervision designed to protect both horse and rider and the result is a steady improvement in jockey standards."

Thirty-six years Fisher spent as a knight of the saddle, starting in at Jeroms Park back in 1873.

Winner of the Kentucky Derby, of two Preakness stakes and three times finishing second in the Belmont, Fisher has never once lost interest in the jockey

He still rides occasionally, but just for the exercise. And you will usually find him somewhere around jockey headquarters, giving of his rich background of experience to some youngsters who shows exceptional promise.

OMAHA, Discovery RACE IN AIR

By Associated Press

Chicago, July 23—The proposed meeting between Discovery, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's crack four-year-old, and Omaha, the three-year-old champion, in the Arlington handicap, Saturday, was still up in the air today.

Racing Secretary Charles McLennan awaited word as to whether Discovery would be shipped from Suffolk Downs to carry the impost of 128 pounds in the $10,000 event. Jim Fitzsimmons, Omaha's trainer, was satisfied with the 118 pounds assigned to his thoroughbred, but had not received permission from owner William Woodward to remain in Chicago for the race.

Fitzsimmons planned to ship Omaha to Saratoga tomorrow to prepare for the Travers midsummer derby and other big events, unless otherwise notified.

SAINTS Play Casey NINE

John Santos' St. Lazarus Club of Orient Heights, making a stretch drive for that fourth playoff position in the Boston Park League, may run into a stone wall tonight.

It travels to Garvey Field in Neponset to meet Dick Casey's club.

The East Boston outfit gained a point on the Hennigans as a result of defeating the new Muldoons of Brighton in a great game, 3-2, while the Roxbury boys were being tied by Caseys.

As the Hennigans are idle tonight, the Saints will battle doubly hard for the two points that go to a victor in the torrid race. Lefty Tobe of Harvard will get the nod for mound work, while Casey most likely will use Reggie O'Hara.

Roslindale will travel to the Strandway in South Boston to meet Billy Benson's St. Augustine team. King will hurl for the visitors, while Benson himself will take the mound for the home club.

Mr. Boston Fans Lionize Danno

By JACK CONWAY

DANNO O'Mahoney would have been a king if he had lived in Ireland 500 years ago.

I have been closely associated with Babe Ruth, Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey, but none of these famous athletes had the same appeal to the public as the 22-year old wonder athlete from the little village of Ballydehob, West Cork, Ireland.

I have watched Danno in his training camp at Manson Inn, Wayland, as he has prepared for his world's championship bout with Ed Don George at Braves Field a week from tonight. Even the immortal John L. Sullivan was never lionized as much by his public as this powerful, unassuming Irishman.

I watched Danno as he stood in the center of a group of 500 persons.

"I want to shake your hand, Danno," said one man proudly.

"Danno, I want your autograph for my little boy," declared a lady.

"Give George the Irish Whip," exclaimed one excited fan as he elbowed his way to Danno's side.

O'Mahoney, a big, handsome boy who is still unspoiled by the world, takes the cheers of the crowd quietly. He greets his admirers with a smile, and never seems to tire of shaking hands with people and with signing autographs.

Like Ruth, Danno has a soft spot in his heart for youngsters.

"We have more trouble catching trains when we are on the road," Jack McGrath told me. "Danno won't pull himself away from people."

• • •

JACK McGRATH has Dick Daviscourt at Manslon Inn polishing up the wrestling holds of the Irish giant.

"I have been watching wrestlers for 20 years," Dick told me, "and O'Mahoney is the greatest mat star I have ever seen. Danno is the strongest man in the world, and it has been my job to harness up his great strength.

"I worked with O'Mahoney for his tussle with Jim Londos, and I thought he beat the Greek heavyweight at wrestling as well as in tests of strength.

"Danno told me after the tussle he was a bit tired at the half-hour mark, but that he then got his second wind. He could have gone for two more hours if it had been necessary.

"I am trying to build up O'Mahoney's endurance as well as to polish off his wrestling. He must be prepared to go for two to three hours if necessary when he opposes George. We are not underrating the champion. He is younger and stronger than Londos and as good a wrestler as Jimmy.

"O'Mahoney will wrestle in his bare feet. He has better balance when he does not wear shoes. He got accustomed to wrestling in his bare feet on the turf in Ireland. Joe Malcewicz also finds he gets better balance when he is not burdened by shoes."

• • •

CAMP ROUTINE

I ASKED Freddy Moran to give me O'Mahoney's training routine.

"Dan is up at 6 o'clock each morning," said Freddy. "He takes a two or three-mile walk, and then has breakfast. After a short rest, he spends the rest of the morning outdoors.

"In the afternoon, O'Mahoney works for an hour with his sparring partners. Dick Daviscourt, Chief Little Moose and Stanley Sitkowski give the Irishman plenty of strenuous training.

"We have dinner at 6 o'clock. By 9 o'clock Danno has retired for the night.

"During rest periods, I have Danno take sun baths on the shores of the lake here. Sun is beneficial to the body.

"The Irishman now weighs 224 pounds. It is solid flesh and bone. I look for him to tear George in two at Braves Field."

• • •

FREE ADMISSION

THERE IS not any admission charge to the public at O'Mahoney's camp.

"Everybody who comes to see me work is a cousin," said Danno laughingly. "So why should I charge them for visiting me?"

Ed Don George's camp at Warwick Inn, Hull, is open to the public free of charge.

• • •

RECORD SALE

TOMMY FARLE tells me there has been a record advance sale for the title tussle which is being staged for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"I have received requests for reservations from all parts of New England and from Canada," said Farle. "I look for a crowd of 60,000 and a gate of $100,000.

"This bout is even better than the Sonnenberg-Lewis tussle at the Garden."

U. S. WINS DOUBLES TILT

YANKS Lucky to Save BACON

RIVALS EVEN MATCH TWICE

By F. A. Wray
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Wimbledon, Eng., July 23 (INS)—Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, fighting with their backs to the wall after a sloppy start, scored a hard-fough victory over Germany today in the crucial doubles match of the Davis Cup tennis inter-zone finals. The score was 3—6, 6—3, 5—7, 9—7, 8—6.

The win gave the Americans a 2-1 lead in team score over Germany and paved the way for a team victory over the Uhlans tomorrow and a challenge round against Great Britain for the coveted trophy this week-end.

Wilmer Allison was conceded a favorite in his match tomorrow over the youthful Heiner Henkel of Germany, and this would give the United States the needed third point to eliminate Germany.

Looks Like Germans

It appeared throughout most of the match that the Germans were going to score a startling upset. The famed team-work of the veteran American doubles pair failed to click, while the brilliant Baron Gottfried Von Cramm and the less experienced K. Lund had the Americans fighting all the way.

America's 1935 Davis Cup hopes hung in the balance throughout the match. The team score was one-all, and tomorrow's two remaining singles matches are expected to be a toss-up, with Allison and Von Cramm each winning against Henkel and the youthful Californian, Donald Budge, respectively.

Budge gave the United States the first point Saturday by beating Henkel.

The 13th game of the first set proved to be the crucial one. The score was six-all as Von Cramm stepped up to serve. Although playing tigerishly, the great German star lost the game after keeping it at deuce three times.

Yanks in Lead

This gave the Americans a 7-6 lead and the chance to win the match on the next service, which they did.

Allison and Van Ryn played only fair tennis today. Their teamwork was fortunate rather than cohesive, and appeared to lack planning.

The German pair, on the other hand, were playing an inspired game, knowing, as the American did too, that the entire team match hinged on the outcome of today's battle.

GIANT Lead Shrinks TO HALF GAME

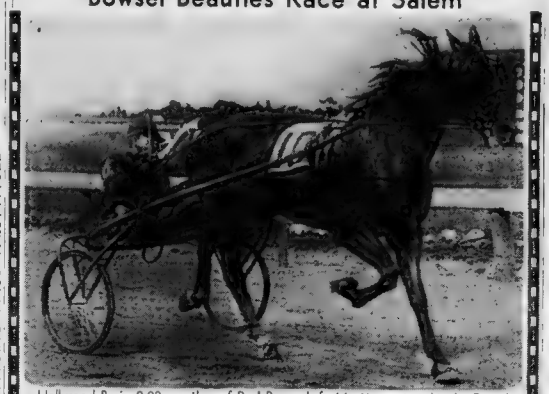
By Universal Service

St. Louis, July 23—Three pennant-mad St. Louis Cardinals hammered New York Giant pitching for sixteen hits and an 8-to-3 victory yesterday to cut the Giant lead in the flag race to a mere half-game. The defeat was the fifth straight for the league leaders.

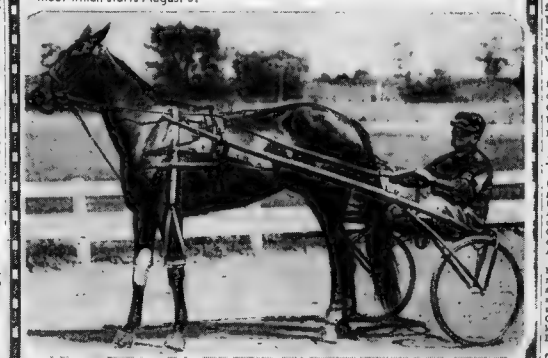
The Cards mauled Hal Schumacher, ace of the Giant pitching staff, for ten hits in the first three innings, for all their runs. They failed to get another run off the combined efforts of Frank Gabler and Leon Chagnon, but the big lead stood up throughout behind the steady pitching of the left-handed Bill Hallahan.

Schumacher, incidentally, has lost three in a row since the Reds snapped his 11-game winning streak.

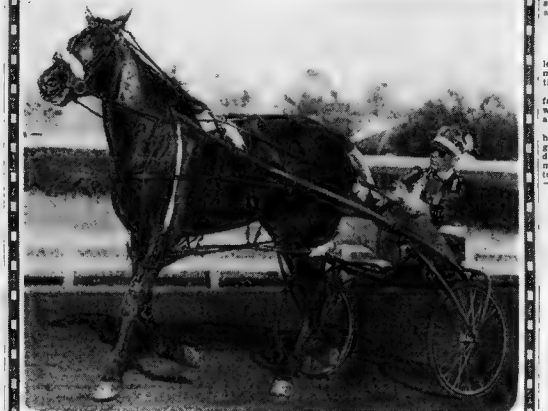
Bowser Beauties Race at Salem



Hollyrood Boris, 2:02, another of Paul Bowser's fast trotters entered in the Grand Circuit races at Rockingham Park. The local mat impresario will also stage the meet which starts August 3.



Tara 2.02½ star trotting filly owned by Paul Bowser, sponsor of the Grand Circuit card of harness races at Rockingham Park, August 3 to 10, who will be among the ace trotters racing at the famous track. Tara already has won two Grand Circuit races this season.



Calumet Evelyn, 2:00¼, sizzling fast pacer in the stable of Vic Fleming, ace Grand Circuit reinsman, who will campaign his stable of fleet steppers at Rockingham Park, August 3-10, under the direction of Paul Bowser, who is sponsoring the rich card of trots and paces. Calumet Evelyn climaxed her career of 1934 by winning the $10,000 free-for-all pace at Lexington, Ky.

BOWSER RACERS SET FOR SALEM

By Ed Cogswell

Already are the trotters and pacers arriving at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., for Paul Bowser's Grand Circuit meeting dated for August 3 to 10.

Following the close of the Big Line meet at Toronto, Canada, there will be a general stampede of the cracks of the sulky for the annual New England session.

A couple of trotters commanding the attention of local devotees of the light harness horse are Tara and Hollyrood Boris, the property of Paul Bowser. The former came strongly in the limelight last season when she was returned the winner in all her races, with a single exception.

It was counted by turf experts that the daughter of Volomite-Sweet Fern was the superior of all three-year-olds in 1934. She met and defeated all of her age, including the winner of the $10,000 Hambleton an stake.

Unfortunately, Tara was not eligible to the rich event, her entry to the same having been dropped by Bowser, as in her two-year-old form the filly was a pacer, and it was fully expected that this was her future destiny.

CHAPTER I

Wesley Ferrell rapped out no game-winning homer in the ninth when he first attracted major league attention.

Neither did the versatile Red Sox hero pitch a low-hit contest or run up an impressive string of strikeouts.

Instead, strange to relate, Wesley had his ears pinned back.

The now handsome stand Adonis was an awkward raw boned collegian at the time, pitching for Guilford in his native North Carolina.

On the same club was a promising young southpaw who had been highly recommended to Cleveland.

An Indian scout was sent down to look the prospect over. His first day on the campus he caught a glimpse of Ferrell in action. It was very brief. Wes couldn't get anybody out. So his coach quickly decided to get him out before the outfielders collapsed from exhaustion.

Scout Stays to Watch Wes

In the next game the highly-touted portsider was put on display. And he exceeded fondest expectations.

"Satisfied?" the coach asked the scout.

"No," answered the leary hunter. "That kid is great but I want to know when that guy Ferrell will pitch again."

"Not until it's absolutely necessary," was the reply, "but you must be kidding. You've certainly seen more than enough of him."

"I haven't," persisted the scout. "I know the kid has speed to burn and a nice curve but I haven't been able to get a line on his control. Nothing he threw the other day ever reached the plate. I'm staying for another look."

He stayed and saw—but little more than he had previously.

• • •

Sees Gold Through Dross of Defeat

It was a new opponent but the same Wesley. He took another early shower.

"Satisfied now?" the coach again asked the scout.

"Well, I'm still a bit in doubt as to his control," chirped the visitor, "but I'm going to recommend him and await further orders from the home office."

The coach was now convinced he was dealing with a city slicker who was trying to take him for a ride. But he was taking no chances.

He wired the Cleveland front office please to send down a baseball man to replace the lunatic present.

That telegram was ignored. The scout's message was answered.

Entirely unaware of what was going on, Ferrell was having the big league finger placed on him.

Soresi Plea On Alp Purse Is Denied

By Universal Service

New York, July 23—The application of Louis R. Soresi to vacate a receivership over Primo Carnera's end of the purse in his fight with Joe Louis was denied by Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer.

The action was taken after a plea by Theodore J. Skratt, of Oakwood, S. I., attorney for Mlss Emilia Tersini, a London waitress who won a breach of promise judgment of $13,770.73 against Carnera last year.

Skratt expressed belief in a conspiracy on the part of some Carnera managers and others to defraud not only Primo's creditors but possibly Primo himself through an "alleged" real estate deal involving two villas in Italy and property at Atlantic Beach, L. I.

N. Y. Postponement Foils Mickey Cochrane's Plans

By Joe Cashman

The Red Sox and Browns are wondering how hard it rained in New York to cause the Yankee management to postpone the opening of the crucial series with Detroit.

The postponement foiled Mickey Cochrane's planes to start Schoolboy Rowe in both the first and fourth games of the engagement. And that was a real break for the McCarthymen, who have beaten the Tiger ace only once during his big league career.

A strong throwing arm may not be as valuable to an outfielder in this era of the lively ball as it was in the days of the slower agate, but there are times when a strong, accurate gun in the garden comes in handy.

Because the Browns have flychasers who can throw, the Box failed to rescue a runner from second with a single and a long fly in the eighth inning of the opener.

The first Roy Johnson, on second with one gone, wasn't allowed to try to score when Werber singled to Sellers in left, and when the Cherokee tried to register on Williams' fly to center, he was nipped at the plate on a strike thrown by Sammy West.

Manager Joe Cronin has now hit safely on his last six official times at bat. He made three straight singles on the last three times up Sunday and then rapped out two doubles and a single in three trips to the platter against the Browns before he sacrificed on his final effort.

Leg injuries kept Oscar Melillo and Bing Miller out of the opener with the Brownies. Ellis Williams went to second base and Dusty Cooke to rightfield.

Johnny Welch, bothered with a sore arm for more than a week, warmed up before the Monday contest.

First blood in the crucial Giants-Cards series in St. Louis went to the world's champion Mound city outfit, when Wild Bill Hallahan hung up his sixth straight victory in his remarkable comeback. And Hal Schumacher, ace of the New York staff, was knocked out of the box as the Frisch clan won, 8 to 5 and clinched within a half game of the roof.

The Chicago Cubs, only four games back of the attic, faltered and were nosed out, 14 to 13, by the Dodgers in an 11-inning nightmare. The Cubs reversed a late run lead before surrendering. Lopez hit a homer for the Dodgers in the tenth and Camilli put the Cubs back in the game with a circuit drive in the last half.

The big National League news of the day, however, came out of Cincinnati, where the Braves, after dropping 13 straight games, came from behind to lick the Reds, 4 to 2. The Warriors went into the seventh trailing 2 to 3. Ray Mueller, kid catcher, then got one of those runs back with a homer. The Tribe went ahead in the eighth and stayed there, Bobby Smith protecting the lead though Ben Cantwell got credit for the win.

Chicago's hustling White Sox climbed within four games of the American League roof and stayed 3½ games up on our Red Sox by hammering the Athletics, 12 to 5. One of the Macks runs off Johnny Whitehead was Bob Johnson's 20th homer of the season.

Cleveland remained only one game back of the Fenway flock by taking the Senators into camp.

Buddy Mahout raced evenly to annex the Monday feature race at Taunton in the track-equalling time of 29 1-5 seconds.

The mutuels soared over the $65,000 mark again as more than eight thousand patrons thronged the plant.

PARKER Shows Rare FORM IN SEABRIGHT TOURNEY

By Associated Press

Seabright, N. J., July 23 — Mercer Beasley, Princeton' tennis coach and personal instructor to 19-year-old Frankie Parker, is confident his protege will go to the top of the court world.

Asked about reports that Parker, a native of Milwaukee and a student at Lawrenceville school, has already reached his peak, Beasley said he was willing to let Frankie's performances tell the story.

"Frankie is right up to schedule with the plan mapped out for him," he said. "and I'm perfectly satisfied with the way he's going. I'm so well satisfied that I'm hopeful he'll better his ranking this year."

Parker, No. 4 on the national list, said much the same thing after he had crushed S. Ellsworth Davenport, 3d, of Forest Hills, N. Y., with the loss of only two games yesterday in the first round of the 48th annual invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club.

Parker won 10 straight games before losing one against Davenport.

Higher Rank

"I feel I'm playing pretty well this year," said Parker, "and I'm aiming of course at a higher place in the standing. I know that's going to be a tough job but I still hope to do it."

Beasley stressed the fact that that tennis is secondary in Parker's life, that his studies come first. He has one more year at Lawrenceville and then plans to go to Princeton.

"Frank's fore hand is criticized because it isn't the crushing kind that appeals to the spectators," he said. "But what good is a crushing fore hand when it can't be controlled? Parker can use it when he knows where it's going and he does. I'm not worried about it and neither is he."

As he always been customary at this tournament, surprise results begin in the opening round of both the men's and women's divisions.

Two top-ranking women stars—the Baroness Maud Levi of New York, No. 5 in the national standing, and Jane Sharp of Pasadena, No. 6—were beaten by two unranked players, Eunice Dean of San Antonio, Texas, and Mrs. Agnes Lamme of Rye, N. Y., respectively.

Two seeded men also bowed out. John Hope Doeg of Rumson, national champion in 1930 who plays more golf than tennis nowadays defeated Robert Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was rated sixth, 6—4, 6—4, and Hal Surface of Kansas City, beat the fourth-seeded John MaDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., 6—3, 6—4.

Youthful Golfers Rest Up in Hoosegow

Four youthful Worcester golf stars were the "guests of honor" at the Cohasset police station last night. The four star boarders were Leslie Douty, Tom and Joe Armstrong and Paul Willey.

The four boys, members of the state championship Worcester High golf team, hitchhiked to Cohasset yesterday in order to compete in the Massachusetts Junior Tourney which opens today at the Cohasset Country Club.

When they found themselves "shorn" financially they wandered into the Cohasset station and requested "rooms for the evening." The genial gentlemen of the Cohasset police force put them up for the night.

Dog Racing Ban in N. J.

By Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., July 23—Atlantic City's agreement to lease its auditorium to the Auditorium Kennel Club for dog racing this summer was nullified by the Supreme Court.

The law under which the club conducted dog races in the same auditorium last year was declared unconstitutional by the state's highest court shortly after the lease was renewed last February and the club put up a $25,000 deposit.

An Atlantic City taxpayer, Elizabeth Streeper, challenged the legality of the lease agreement, and the supreme court's opinion, written by Justice Clarence E. Case, declared the agreement "palpably unlawful."

Justice Case asserted the parimutuel betting system used in connection with the dog races was "long ago classified, and condemned, as a lottery by the courts of this state."

Vinton Going Well

For keen competition, I've never heard of anything like the current Brae-Burn Country Club handicap . . . Just prior to the state amateur championship, Mel Heath, Jr., eliminated Eddie Stimpson, 1 up, over the 36-hole route a . . . In the same round, Ray Gorton went 20 holes to best P. F. Turner and last Sunday Mel and Ray were all even at the end of the regulation 18 holes and will play off over another 18 holes this coming Sabbath . . .

Donald Vinton, Plymouth, who was the 1926 Massachusetts open champion, was 36 on his own ball to turn yesterday at Brae-Burn in the John Shanahan Day pro greenkeepers' championship . . . Vinton Golhoim, Highland, is playing a rare brand of golf . . . He gave his home club members something to brag about by shooting a 68 against Gene Sarazen and Babe Didrikson, and a new 76 on his own ball yesterday at Brae-Burn . . . Jim McCormick, Unicorn, is in the market for a new No. 4 iron . . . Harry Nettleblatt, Pakachoag Hill, is the big money winner among the New England pros this season . . . Gus White and Joe Stein are laying plans for another Eastern open championship to be held late in September at Sandy Burr . . . Just as soon as Promoter White gets warmed up the furs will start to fly . . .

Jack Leary reports that there is plenty of activity, as usual, at the Scituate Country Club, despite the fact that the Bullrush Farm Coways have gone horses and baseball . . . Irving Bamforth, the South Shore cure for all golf ailments, was well on his way to a new course record recently when he started 3 3 4 3 4 at West Hingham, but the pressure grabbed him.

Babe the 'Ribber'

Don't miss the South Shore open on Friday and Saturday . . . The club is offering a surprise in the way of special prizes . . . Babe Didrikson is a great "ribber," and she is continually giving Gene Sarazen the "business," much of which is over the head of the star open champion . . . She also gave it to Freddie Wright at Marshfield, and she had Freddie Corcoran biting his fingernails since she came into this section.

Bout Postponed

New York, July 22 (AP)—A bout scheduled for tonight between Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion, and Jackson Anderson, Swedish light heavyweight, was postponed until next Monday night because of threatening weather.

Mass. Open Starts Next Monday

DIDRIKSON A RIBBER

By Bill Grimes

The Wachusett Country Club will stage its second annual Central Massachusetts open championship next Monday . . . Harry Nettelblatt, who, yesterday, with his partner, Tom Mattus, won the John Shanahan Plaque at Brae-Burn, will defend his title . . .

At the end of the 36 holes a year ago, Nettelblatt was deadlocked with Jack Curley, Emil Mascicchi and Tony Guimelli, but he went out and won the nine-hole play off and the title . . . The Wachusett club is offering $75 for first prize, and there will be seven cash awards . . . At the Oakley Country Club, next Sunday, there will be a pro-member guest and a similar attraction will be staged by the Framingham Country Club the following Sunday.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 8 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Wednesday, July 24

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Suffolk Downs. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

20 pairs of tickets to the Suffolk Downs Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 5 points, second counts 4 points, one third counts 3 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Thursday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Wednesday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

Watch for the Suffolk Downs Daily Double

WHITCOMB RILEY RADIO DRAMA TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

Among the dial doings duly designated for tonight, methinks none of the programs planned appear more appealing than the half hour where Edgar A. Guest holds forth (WEZ) from 8:30 until 9 o'clock.

If for no other reason than the period promises to include a dramatic version depicting the last hours in life of James Whitcomb Riley, famous poet, sage and philosopher in the history of American literature.

Death claimed Riley 19 years ago this month. Edgar Guest, then a bright budding newspaper reporter and likewise, gifted as a human-interest poet, wrote a striking epicum memorative verse which even now he values highly among his writes. Guest will recite the piece this evening on the air. Physicians who attended the celebrated Hoosier genius at the time of his demise in Indianapolis, have provided authentic data on which to construct the scene of the passing in his old Lockerbie street house.

FAST MOVING FEATURE

Noel Coward's well known operetta, "Bitter Sweet," which teaches youth to take its happiness while it may, will be presented by the Beauty Box Theater group (WEEI) at 10 o'clock this evening.

Francia White, soprano; James Melton, tenor; Theodore Webb, baritone, and John Barclay, leading man, will sing and portray the principal roles of this poignant musical drama.

• • •

Bach, Handel and Mozart works nominate the concert to be played by the Goldman Band under the leadership of Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman tonight (WBZ) at 10.00 p. m. Opening with the march and chorus, from Handel's "Judas Maccabeus," the concert goes coast-to-coasting from Prospect Park, Brooklyn, New York.

SECRET AGENT STAR

This evening (WAAB) when it's "8 o'clock Agent X9" time, meaning at 6 30 and the Boston Evening American X9 broadcast with "Uncle News" takes place at 6.30, there's a popular fan mail demand for the return of little 8-year-old Richard Condon, of Reading. Richard was a guest on the Tuesday evening turn several weeks ago and the response was heavy asking that he be permitted to s'ng again. Joe Lally and Ruth Hansen will be on the job for the theme song singing. Ruth is to accompany Richard as well.

TROUBLE FIXER' TO AID DYING TREES

By "THE TROUBLE FIXER"

Trees, specimens of nature's finest handicraft, are harbors of shady shelter against the summer's blistering sun.

Trees are continually ravaged by minute organisms that sap out their life.

Thus it was in a despairing hope to save the trees that F. K., of West Newton street, Boston, wrote to "The Trouble Fixer" the following letter:

"On West Newton street, Boston, we have lovely chestnut trees. However, the leaves are rapidly turning yellow and dying. The chestnuts are dead also. Practically every person on the street has endeavored to beautify the front yard of his home, but plants and shrubs are being killed by the same thing that is destroying the trees, namely, a minute yellow-green bug and two-three inch yellow caterpillars."

"The Trouble Fixer" immediately got in touch with the Boston park department, which has jurisdiction over the trees, and the department has promised to spray the trees.

"The Trouble Fixer" is glad to acknowledge appreciation for cooperation in obtaining tenements for needy people to Mrs. Fred Robbins, of 75 Fairchild street, Cambridge; Mrs. Bruce Loudin, of 15 Lee street, Jamaica Plain; and Mrs. A. McNally, of 6 Almont street, Mattapan.

Many thanks to Mrs. G. Oitinger, of 809 East street, Walpole, for her response to the appeal of the indigent mother for clothes for herself and little daughter.

B. G. C., Charlestown—You must send name and address if wish "The Trouble Fixer" to take action. He cannot consider anonymous complaints.

Mrs. Phebe Metsler, Somerville—"The Trouble Fixer" cannot help you, for an appeal of the kind you desire is a commercial advertisement. If he can help you in any other way, please write.

Charles F. Clarke, Jr., Newburyport street, Boston—You do not explain in your letter what you want of "The Trouble Fixer." I can understand your case well enough, but it is not clear what you want me to do. According to your letter, you have a night waiting at present. Send in your request.

Mrs. R. M. Cyr, Garfield avenue, Revere—The board of health in your city investigated your complaint and found that the party you named was burning rubbish thrown into his yard, and that some rid of the rubbish, no more fires will be made.

Be brief. Be explicit. Write your complaint or request to "The Trouble Fixer," Boston Evening American.

Radio Answers

Q—Is the weekly "First Nighter" presented in "The Little Theater off Times Square," and where is that playhouse located in New York?

A—That is just a setting, the program is a studio broadcast. Many people visiting New York have made that same inquiry of policemen, but there isn't any such place.

Q—How can we obtain a photo of Al Rowley the singer with Ray Noble's orchestra?

Dobbie, of Medford.

A—Write to him in care of the station where you hear his program. Some artists forward pictures and others do not, the expense being a big factor.

Q—Haven't heard the "Rhythm Roundup" doings over WNAC lately. Are the artists off for the summer? Where can I hear the young man who was the pianist on the program? Is he on the air and what is his name?

Dolores M., of Cohasset.

A—It is temporarily suspended, but will be likely to return soon. He is Sully Kendis and can be heard in a morning piano presentation on that station at 8:30 a. m.

Q—How old is Lanny Ross and where is he originally from? Is the "Showboat" really aboard a boat? Rita, of Brattleboro

A—Lanny is 26 years old and hails from California. No, that is just a studio setting.

Q—What has become of the Ghost Story" period that was on WBZ and by Louis (I don't know his last name) but broadcast on 8 45 p. m. I enjoyed it and wonder if it will be back?

Mrs. G. A., of Salem

A—It is off the air for a while and will hardly be back in the summer. The name is Louis M. Anspacher, with Vera Brodsky and Harold Triggs attending to the two-piano duty.

Forward your radio questions to the Radio Editor of the Boston Evening American then watch this space for the information you seek.

WPA TO OPEN New Boston Office

Through the Flames

Mother Cat Runs Five Times Into Burning Building to Save Her Kittens

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

News Reporter Edwin Ross of 127 Pennsylvania avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., makes the headlines today, boys and girls with a human interest story of a mother's rescue of her little ones. Let's tune in on Ed.

"Newspaper men," Ed writes, "get great experiences in their daily rounds. Well, I'm one of the leg men who sees all, hears all and dishes it out to his desk. My beat takes in a polyglot section where anything can happen and usually does. It's the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, where riots, fires, gang murders and sundry happenings take place almost daily.

"Still this yarn is not one fraught with danger or personal hazard. It's about a cat. A common, ordinary mother cat of somewhat nondescript appearance. One of the alley type variety, you know. She didn't do much but what she did gave me a thrill that could not be surmounted by many stories with human angles to them.

"Walking my beat one summer day in 1932, I heard fire apparatus sirens and saw trucks pull up to a street corner where plenty of thick black smoke was emanating from a three-story apartment building. Sensing a story, I ran to the scene. Arriving there I saw the fire was in the cellar of a grocery store in the building. The firemen opened up the cellar doors and boy!—did that smoke pour out!

"In they went, dragging the throbbing and well charged hose lines. Standing outside the building, in the middle of the street, I began the routine question asking. Recognizing an old friend of mine, a deputy fire chief in charge at the blaze, I started to question him when he stopped talking suddenly and grabbed my shoulder, saying:

"'There's your story, Ed.'

"Well, Floyd, I followed his hand, pointing at that thick smoke, pouring out of the open cellar doors and there, coming up the steps, barely discernible was a little mother cat with a kitten in her teeth.

"I followed her as she ran around the corner of the building and saw her deposit the mewing baby of hers in a small coal box in a hallway in an adjoining house.

"Back into that cellar she ran, after depositing her precious burden in a safe place. Dodging firemen, who might have trampled her in that inky blackness, where suffocating smoke blinded them as they sought to locate the stubborn blaze. Swimming through water ankle deep in that cellar, and wheezing for breath, that brave little cat went back for the rest of her brood, and she GOT them!

"Five trips she made. Disregarding her own safety as long as she rescued her babies. Five hazardous, dangerous dashes into that fire-laden, smoke-filled cellar to bring her brood of newly born kittens to safety.

"Firemen stared at her, school kids let out cheer after cheer, while kindly neighbors kept the hall door open for her to bring her kittens to a safe haven.

"We started to take the cat's picture and boy—she went into action then! Even though she was soaked with cold water from the fire hose, half groggy from smoke-filled lungs and eyes and saddened by the loss of one of her brood, she let those photographers know they could not molest her babies.

"So we left her alone but I couldn't help remarking how different—in her modesty—that cat was to many of us humans."

Thanks, Ed, for a good story. It reminds me of another cat story I sent from Paris during the World War. It was while "Big Bertha"—the giant German long distance gun—was shelling Paris. Those shells used to drop every twenty minutes—on the dot—and when we heard one we could time the next one to just about the second.

One day while I was sitting at a sidewalk cafe with a friend of mine, we heard a shell explode in another part of the city. I glanced at my wristwatch and when the usual twenty minutes was about up, I told my friend to listen while I called the arrival of the next shell.

"One, two," I counted. But I never got to "three"

Wham! The whole world seemed to blow up under our feet. We were flat on the sidewalk and under that table before you could count "one." Big Bertha had visited a small six-story hotel just across the street from where we were sitting and when we were able to see through the flying dust, we saw the entire building had collapsed.

Strangely enough, the building next to it had not been touched and one wall of the fallen structure on that side remained standing. Fireplaces and the mantel pieces could be seen untouched on each floor. And on the top floor, perched safely on the marble mantel, was a cat!

Well, sir, the French firemen arrived in no time and the first thing they did was to run an extension ladder up to Kitty's perilous perch and while we cheered our heads off with the rest of the crowd, a fireman ran up the ladder and brought the cat down to safety.

So you see, boys and girls, even a cat can make the Adventurer's column, so why not get busy and send in that story about YOUR pet. The ten-spot prize will buy him or her a nice new collar and then some.

I'll be back tomorrow with another true story.

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

TAXATION

Real THREAT TO Recovery

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The higher tax burden which faces the country following dispatches indicating presidential insistence on scaled corporate income tax is decidedly disturbing.

However, as the United Business Service of Boston pointed out recently, moves such as this will give interest in government economy a powerful impulse. When the hand of the tax gatherer reaches deeper into the pockets of individuals, even indirectly, it will be easier to arouse opposition. But a prejudice to this happening will be the acquiescing of individuals with the deadening effect of taxation on recovery.

* * *

Altogether too many people are prone to neglect the economic effect of taxation which does not strike them directly. They ignore entirely the fact burdensome imposts place a severe handicap upon initiative and enterprise. If industry is to recover, the United Business Service believes the need is for less, not more, taxes in order that employment may increase and people may be left with more money to spend and invest. It is the duty of big corporations to see to it that the average person is acquainted with facts such as these. For no the very nature of things they will not come to recognize them otherwise.

* * *

State Street Briefs: Great interest locally in forecasts of lower prices . . . Well back in the early months of 1935 we printed a synopsis of the price views of Alexander Hamilton Institute . . . Attention was strongly urged . . . The nub of the argument presented was that artificial steps by government had destroyed the relation between purchasing power and price levels . . . Either a drop in trade or a price decline was seen . . . Ex-NRA and with the AAA tinkering and large crops in sight, prices are being readjusted downward . . . It is not complete yet, and is expected to last the year out.

* * *

The market is measured by the closing on the 30 industrial index went into new high ground without possibility of doubt. As measured by the rails, the bull market is far from clear. The price of 34½ on the hourly release has yet to be attained. Disregarding the high prices by the industrials, the group has not been able to improve its position. Since it is still holding within the 123-125 range. We advise a close stop under the industrial low of last Tuesday. In the meantime make their test point sell industrials and buy rails.

* * *

Shorts: The steels have shown something on the upside, and if the rails come along now the last doubter will find the bandwagon distinct . . . The low-priced New York Central, Illinois Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania issues are the ones we will favor if and when . . . Sears Roebuck is but a short step away from its bull market high . . . And a continuation of trading enthusiasm for statements such as published yesterday will soon send it above that . . . The utilities are a sore spot and must be watched.

STOCK Prices Firm AT CLOSE

RAILS, STEELS FEATURE

New York, July 23—Led by the rails, steels and mining issues, the stock market today overrode profit taking and many equities advanced to new high levels for the year or longer.

U. S. Steelling got up 3 points and others fractionally to a point or more, Japanese intelligence in Peaco, American Smelting, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Steel, Otis Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, Westinghouse and American Sugar Refining.

yielded about a point each and General Motors and Chrysler were heeltini. The late tone was steady to firm.

Most of the commission houses reported little importance to the profit taking in recently strong stocks and the general opinion seemed to be that, with the exception of various temporary interruptions, the trend was still upward.

Although inflationary developments in Congress appeared to have had little influence on yesterday's market, some of the mining issues lifted their heads today on the hope that the silver expansionists might at least get something out of their present drive to add some $5,000,000,000 to the country's paper money stocks.

Brokerage quarters as a whole, however, were still clinging to the belief that the demand for equities has been based on an investment urge and that speculation, either for inflation or otherwise, is comparatively small.

Italy's action in suspending the gold coverage requirement was seen as a necessary move in the Ethiopian tangle and was expected to have a little effect on the domestic financial situation.

Current News

Only Italian bonds were heavy on the Stock Exchange today, the lira sagged in foreign exchange dealings. Aside from the lira, other foreign monies were quiet.

Many earnings statements continued to show gains for the first six months and added to the hopefulness of those who foresee a substantial third quarter, which will be made public tomorrow, run all the way from $1.15 to $1.20 a share and predictions were being heard of a 50-cent extra dividend.

The overnight budget of news, both business and political, came in for careful study by Wall Streeters anxious for a hint of near-term trend.

Investment circles hailed the Washington report that a big integrated effort would be made to curtail relief rolls and to get unemployed back to farm and industrial jobs.

Security analysts gave close attention to the opposition of Joseph B. Eastman, transportation coordinator, to the recently renewed drive in Congress for railroad pension legislation.

The increase of $273,000,000 in holdings of government securities reported by Federal reserve member banks in 91 leading cities as of July 17 was seen in some banking circles as sympathetic of the current expansion of other types of earning assets.

In the foreign exchange market the pound sterling opened off ½ of a cent at $4.95½. The French franc was up .50% of a cent at 6.62½ cents. The guilder opened 70% of a cent higher at 67.77½ cents.

Earnings Reduced

Cleveland—Pere Marquette Railway reports for six months ended June 30, 1935, surplus of $334,837, equal to 44 cents a share on 124,390 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock.

This compares with $373,660, or $2.36 a share on preferred stock in first half of 1934.

Martha Gives Some New Egg Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

Seeking cool ways of doing things these days? Cooling foods to feed the family are one thing, and cool ways to prepare them are quite another.

Eggs really are delightfully cool comfort for cooks, because there are so many quick, easy ways to prepare them. They are equally cool comfort for the family, for they provide excellent muscle-building material without adding unnecessary calories. One egg yields only 70 calories, and since the usual serving consists of two eggs, they add only 140 calories to the day's diet.

The calorie-value is so low because eggs are low in fat and carbohydrates, both of which are over large-quantity calorie producers. Remember to keep eggs in the refrigerator to keep them fresh.

Although we do like occasional cold meals, most of us prefer at least one good warm dish a day. Eggs make nutritious warm dishes which supply the kind of food our families need. There is, for example, the simple but satisfying creamed eggs on toast or on rice.

The eggs may be hard cooked in the morning while breakfast is being cleared away. A good way to hard cook them is to cover the eggs with cold water in a saucepan, bring to a boil and then let it simmer for 20 minutes. Then run cold water over the eggs to cool them quickly. The quick chilling prevents the darkening of the edge of the yolks.

Here is how to make this basic style creamed eggs. Empty the contents of a can of creamed mushroom soup in the top of a double boiler, put in the eggs which have been cut into halves, and heat them over hot water. Serve on toast, in individual pastry shells or on cooked noodles.

Another easy hot weather dish is made by putting a broiled slice of ripe tomato on a piece of buttered toast and then a poached egg on top of that. Garnish with crisp bacon, sliced. Accompany this with cold lettuce salad and a glass of milk to make the perfect summertime luncheon or dinner.

SPANISH WAY

A favorite Spanish way of serving fried eggs that fits into American menus is to fry strips of ham with eggs and then serve them with tomato sauce and potatoes.

SUMMER PLATTER

Cut hard cooked eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks, mash and season them. For variety, some may be seasoned with Roquefort cheese, some with anchovy paste or caviar, horseradish, mustard or plain mayonnaise. Arrange on bed of curly endive, watercress or lettuce. Garnish platter with pie-shaped pieces of cheese, cold ham and radish roses. This platter is excellent served with potato salad.

SHIRRED EGGS ALEXANDRA

4 tablespoons cream.
4 eggs.
Salt and pepper.

Put layer of chicken into buttered individual baking dishes or into baked pastry shells. Break an egg over each, sprinkle with salt and pepper and add a tablespoon cream to each. Bake 10-15 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. F.), or until eggs are set.

SCRAMBLED EGGS EN MUFFINS

4 muffins or buns
2 tablespoons cream
1 teaspoon pepper
4 eggs
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Scoop centers from left-over muffins or day-old buns. Toast lightly. Beat eggs and other ingredients to blend them. Cook in butter, stirring occasionally. Fill cups with the mixture and serve.

SCRAMBLED EGGS TARTRUFFE

4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon minced onion

Fry onion in butter for 3 minutes. Add tomatoes, salt and sugar and let simmer for 5 minutes. Add eggs and stir with fork until light and creamy. Garnish with parsley.

HOW'S THE pantry shelf these days? Are there plenty of canned fruits to use for salads, fruit cups and desserts. $1.00 will place on your shelf, 2 cans of fruit for salad, 2 of California pears, 2 of peeled apricots, 2 of sliced peaches, while this special sale lasts.

NOT A NEW piece of equipment, but an interesting offer, is that the mayonnaise mixer with one pint of salad oil for 39c, this week only. Generally 49c. Makes mayonnaise quickly and easily, without fail.

THERE ARE MANY concoctions for cooling drinks on the market that can be used as they are, or with fresh fruit juices, to make the glass that cheers. A punch which we have used here in our Cooking School is being sold at a reduced price, at a near-by store. A variety of flavors—lemon, lime, strawberry, orange—from which to choose. Selling at 15c for a generous jar, or 2 for 25c; generally 20c each.

A SUPPLY OF ice cubes will last for several hours in a new wooden ice bucket which is made of genuine oak, with a glass lining, and trim of chromium. Space enough to hold two large trays or three small trays of cubes. $9.50. A pair of chromium utility tongs, bottle opener attached, 65c.

IN THESE DAYS of long weekends and many picnics, cellophane food bags are a convenience. Will keep foods fresh in the refrigerator for a longer period of time. Bags are moisture-proof, grease-proof and odor-proof. The large size, 4x8, has a gusset on the side for extra width. 10c the pkg.

A SMALL, single strainer which will fit over any ordinary sink drain, strains out all tiny particles, keeps the drain from clogging. 10c.

A HANDY EGG beater that has many uses is truly a push-me mixer. Has a removable, hinged splash guard around the beater. Can be used in a large, small or shallow dish. The bowl which turns the beater is placed on top and the wheels themselves are to one side, so that the beater can be used while held on its side. 49c. This is one among many excellent values on sale at a nearby department store which is having block-taking sale.

I SHALL BE delighted to send you information on the above items, if you will send the column clipped and checked, with name and address plainly written, and 3c stamp for prompt reply. Or, telephone Martha Lee, at LIBerty 4000,

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Gloucester, July 23—Plump Joey Randazza, Jr., 3½-year-old fisherman's son who weighs 122 pounds (officially), may be permitted to make public appearances here this fall.

Mrs. Randazza says she will not let him appear in a sideshow as a freak. She said that there was no reason why he couldn't be helped in his home town for the benefit of the hard pressed Gloucester fisher-folk.

Perry, Ga., July 23—An ice cream cone competition war can go only so far, and then it gets top-heavy. At any rate, that's what happened when salesmen got up to seven scoops to a cone in their fight for patronage.

World Opinion Condemns Cruel Nazi Persecution of Jews and Catholics

RENEWAL of outrages against the Jews in Germany is a revolting spectacle.

It seems to be accompanied by a drive also against the Roman Catholic clergy who, with characteristic bravery and loyalty to the tenets of their religion, are peacefully and yet resolutely refusing compliance with the senseless impositions of the Nazi regime.

How could they do otherwise than resist —come what may—orders which strike at the very foundation of their faith and duty?

THE Nazi Ministers, Dr. Wilhelm Frick and General Goering, are said to have got out of hand and to be proceeding on their own, without clear authorization from Hitler, and, according to some reports, in opposition to him.

Whether this is true or not, the outrages reported by the most reliable news agencies seem to have a large measure of official instigation.

Such conduct on the part of the Nazi Government is unbelievable stupidity.

THE intelligent people of the world will neither forgive nor forget the physical atrocities perpetrated upon the Jewish people in Germany.

World sympathy and support will not fail the faithful Catholics and their clerical leaders in this hour of trial and testing.

Sad indeed and unhappy is the lot of a nation where class conflict and religious intolerance rage.

Let us be profoundly thankful that, despite the presence among us of those who would foment such conflict and intolerance in this country, the great mass of our citizenship is too enlightened and tolerant by nature and inheritance to permit of their success.

Equal opportunity and religious freedom are the web and woof of liberty-loving America.

MAY IT ALWAYS BE SO!

LET US ALL LIVE TOGETHER IN PEACE AND FREEDOM AND PRESERVE OUR LIBERAL DEMOCRACY!

"CCC" Camp Needed

Taxpayers Won't Mind Cost

ONE thing you can say for the Reds, they don't hide their light under a bushel.

And about the most brazen claim they have made to date is their proud boast that they have thrown a monkey wrench into the machinery of the CCC, and have some 100,000 desertions from the camps to their CREDIT!

The Young Communist Party reports modestly that it has been largely responsible for the occasional disciplinary troubles in the camps.

Also that it expects to extend this laudable work to every one of the twenty-six hundred which will be organized by the end of this year.

Taxpayers ought to be interested.

They have been digging up millions of dollars to provide the camps and give jobless American boys food and shelter during the depression.

And now they are informed by the young Communists, quite candidly, that the object of the Communist party is to wreck this program—and that this object has been at least partially successful.

Taxpayers may conclude that the government ought to organize a new kind of CCC camp—a COMMUNIST CONCENTRATION CAMP—for the exclusive use of these agitators.

Port of Boston

Business and Recreation

The Maritime Association and Port Authority continue to do excellent work in acquainting industry with the many advantages of Boston harbor.

Boston Harbor, along with Massachusetts Bay, also presents great recreational attractions.

Members of the Nashua, N. H., Chamber of Commerce were recent guests on an all-day cruise on which the harbor facilities were inspected.

It is a smart wide-awake policy to "sell" the Port of Boston to prospective shippers in such a pleasant manner.

Further than that it is a sensible move to first acquaint New Englanders with the harbor facilities of their largest city.

For, as the Port of Boston grows in importance, so will the industries of the whole section, bringing a greater measure of prosperity to all.

Beverly Bridge

No, It's NOT a Game

Beverly Bridge, on the delightful North Shore, will be getting into the "news reel funnies" if this keeps up.

If what keeps up?

Why the humorous hullabaloo about a few people—probably mostly youngsters and the unfortunate jobless—who want to fish.

The County Commissioners declared recently that they'd prohibit fishing from the bridge if "thefts" of nuts and bolts for use as "sinkers" wasn't stopped.

Then they complained to the Beverly police about odors from decaying worms and fish.

Maybe the "removers" didn't use the hardware for fishing.

Perhaps they were just plain vandals, like those who knock over headstones in cemeteries or deface the summit monument on Jacob's Ladder.

Why not make the nuts and bolts as irremovable as those who hold obsolete and useless public offices?

'Trees'

Granite State Inspiration

While New Yorkers wrangle as to whether a recently felled historic elm furnished the inspiration for Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," New Hampshire enters a strong claim for the honor.

A frequent visitor to Swanzey, whose simple life he so much admired, the poet is supposed to have scribbled the immortal stanza on the back of a large brown paper bag.

No stranger to the great writers of other years, Swanzey can not be blamed if she is loath to let this honor escape her.

For it is treasured along with memories of the late Denman Thompson who wrote his "Old Homestead" in the quiet of the New Hampshire town.

So let the largest city in the country beware lest those who seek her honor bring down instead the wrath of an aroused Monadnock countryside.

Despicable Fiend

Killer of Pets

A despicable fiend—pick a shorter and uglier adjective if you want to—is loose in Scituate.

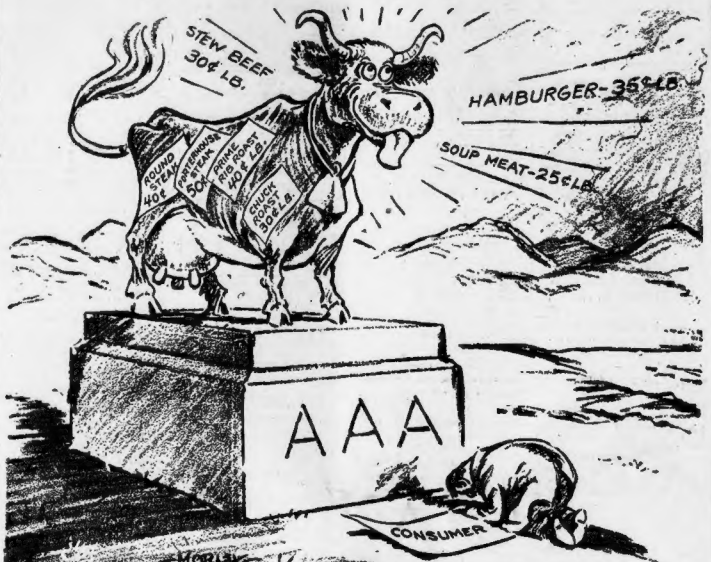
Already he has killed more than a half dozen dogs in scattered sections of the town.

News writers describe the animals as "high-priced pets." The cash value of the dog makes no REAL difference.

The death of a yellow mongrel, tearing the heart strings of a child, may cause more pain than that of a costly blue ribbon pup.

We wish Michael T. Stewart, Scituate's chief of police, the best of luck in his search for the poisoner.

The Golden Calf Grows Up



Consumers had their say while the Senate was considering the new price-fixing venture of the AAA but to no avail.

Senator Copeland, of New York, said:

"Passage of this bill will increase living costs and intensify the misery of countless citizens."

Augmenting consumer price increases already imputed to the AAA, Senator Copeland contended the pending amendment would add another $1.50 to the price of a barrel of flour, and four cents to the price of meat.

Effects of the AAA were predictable—and predicted.

In his veto of the McNary-Haugen bill the late President Coolidge described its tax theory as uneconomic—certain to raise prices to the consumer and, by reducing consumption, add to farmers' surpluses.

Now it is all in a mess.

The processing tax is held unconstitutional by the Federal court in Boston.

Artificial prices have brought a flood of foreign products here, while diverting the farmers' export market to foreigners.

The consumer is distressed by price increases, while the farmer is dependent on Government bounty.

From all of which it would appear that Secretary Wallace's "golden calf" is NOT a good idol to worship.

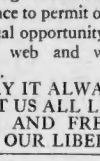
Sunda's Tom-Toms Beat

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Sunda Strait, that swift tidal estuary which separates Java and Sumatra, echoes the troubled thumping of the Malay tom-toms.



Edwin C. Hill

The little yellow people around Sunda Strait are alarmed once more by the savage belchings of the dreaded monster, Krakatoa.

For again Krakatoa, a small island in the strait, and all volcano, is vomiting white hot lava and threatening another such explosion as disturbed the surface of the earth, land and water, 11,000 miles from the tremendous blowout.

GREATEST ERUPTION

It was on August 26, 1883, that Krakatoa blew off his own wicked head. The eruption was probably the most violent in recorded history.

The roar of it was actually heard 3000 miles away.

The shock was so terrific that ocean waves, thrown up by the shock, rolled as far as Cape Horn, nearly 8000 miles distant, and some say as far as the English Channel, 11,000 miles away.

For two centuries before that mighty blast from the earth's fiery interior, old Krakatoa had smoked, and glowered and glowed.

A plume of smoke by day; a pillar of fire by night; a lighthouse and a landmark for the little cargo ships which went nosing through Sunda. And then all of a sudden, with little preliminary warning, the monster shot a terrific column of lava high in the air.

Batavia, 100 miles away, was completely darkened by ashes.

40,000 PERISH

In the Malay Archipelago probably 40,000 persons in seacoast town and village were drowned by the huge tidal wave which immediately followed the eruption. After that savage outburst, Krakatoa went to sleep for another 45 years. It stirred irritably in 1928, 1929 and 1930; and again it threatened violence in 1933.

The only modern instance of such volcanic violence occurred in Alaska several years ago, when Aniakchak, a volcano in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, erupted with such force that ashes from the edge of the Arctic Circle showered down upon the Desert of Sahara.

And now the prize monster of them all, Krakaota, is at it again, to the terror of the Malays and the anxiety of the government of the Netherlands East Indies, for Holland owns all this territory.

Such savage manifestations of nature as the eruptions of Krakatoa and Aniakchak, remind us we live on a very thin crust, probably not more than one hundred miles thick which serves to cover the molten fires of the interior of this old planet.

WORLD SHAKEN

Scientists have learned a great deal in the past 40 or 50 years about the activities of these vent-holes of the inferno which we call volcanoes. Nevertheless, eruptions are not always predictable.

The volcano we know as Vesuvius, but whose ancient name was Somma, had been regarded as extinct for many centuries. Yet in the autumn of the year 79 it blew up, and the Roman world quivered to the shock.

Volcanoes do not always expel fiery lava. Mt. Etna is usually a great steam funnel.

The volcano of Agua in Guatemala has never been known to discharge anything but water, but the great crater of Idjen, Java, is a hot lake of acid water.

Another head devil of the volcanic family is Kilauea in Hawaii. Its greatest eruption was in 1868, and the blowout was accompanied by tremendous earthquakes.

The Japanese group of islands have experienced frightful volcanic earthquake violence.

The worst in centuries occurred in 1923 when whole cities were flattened and more than 100,000 people lost their lives.

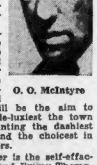
Probably the most stupendous outpouring of volcanic ashes on record took place just 100 years ago from the volcano Coseguina. Utter darkness prevailed for 35 miles around.

The ashes fell as thickly that they covered the ground for a depth of ten feet.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 23—Gil Boag's return to the night club scene where he was so long the reputed king brings back into circulation, too, the once swanky Embassy Club in East 57th street. It was built for exclusive cut glass capers and membership was handpicked.



O. O. McIntyre

Boag will rechristen the place the Cafe de l'Opera and its interior color scheme will be egg-plant and cream. It will be the aim to make it the de-luxiest the town has seen, flaunting the dashiest in uniforms and the choicest in food and liquors.

Boag's backer is the self-effacing apple-cheeked Jimmy Thompson who sponsored the Palais Royal and The Rendezvous where Boag featured his then wife, Gilda Gray, so successfully she was catapulted into The Follies. Boag also sponsored the Piccadilly restaurant, another success.

Jimmy Thompson is about the only man who ever made important money out of New York night clubs. He inherited a fortune but is a shrewd investor and wise to the Broadway chiseler. He withdrew from all activities a year before the crash. He believes now is time to begin again.

Variety points out that grand opera has all of a sudden gone pretty. And is catering in a big way to that initialed quality called S. A. Most opera stars have been heavy chested women, amply hipped and not much to add up on the beauty side.

The voice was the thing. But the new stars are slim, graceful and strikingly beautiful. Such as Gladys Swarthout, Grace Moore, Lily Pons, Lucrezia Bori and Helen Jepson. Any one would look O. K. in the Follies. Another personable lady the opera masters are watching is Jane Froman of the radio.

Free medical clinics around New York have begun a fight on one of the strangest of chiselings. They will try to weed out the wealthy people who graft gratuitous treatments.

There are actual photographic records of patients stepping from chauffeured limousines a block away and walking to clinics. Trying to graft health is something for historians.

Surprising little eating places are often accidentally chivvied up on less frequented by-ways. We were a party of four, impatient at the stuffiness of one of those elegant cafes called smart, and ducked into a prim, chintzy place in the East 50's.

It was raining and there were only two other diners. A patch of garden in the rear was soaked. We regretted our choice until a savory eatery soup came. Two men seemed in charge. One a Swiss and the other North European, likely a Dane. The meal grew in excellence.

Meat balls cooked with sweet cream, chopped parsley and onions, rye bread and eggs and called "Frikadelle." A Swiss salad of spiced meat and onion relish and a dessert listed as "Aebie-Sherry-Trefle," tasting of macaroons, apples, sherry and a bit of genius.

The check was under $4. The proprietor bowed us out as grandly as Oliver in Paris. No liquor is served and I wondered how with such slim patronage it could furnish a living. Yet many such go on while the hot spots often cool.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

SALUTE TO COURAGE

Disgusted with life and sick of people? Just about decided that we're an utterly selfish, cowardly lot, not worth our salt?

That's a mean mood, stranger, and it gets us all down, sooner or later.

Elsie Robinson

Worst part of it is, you can produce a ton of evidence to prove you're right—incidents where people you've trusted have proven complete washouts.

Then suddenly comes something like this. A real letter?

Yes. And—I warn you—a bit dreadful.

You'll not read it without a shudder.

But here's betting it will give you a new feeling toward yourself and the other fellow—fresh hope and faith—and that grip on greatness which you need to help you go on again.

Dear Elsie—(she writes):

I've just come from the funeral of my little friend. She was such a gay kid, and maybe the last you'd expect to make the honor roll for heroes; but there's a part of her story you might like to hear.

"IT DOESN'T HELP"

She was a long time dying, and the worst of it was she knew she was dying. For a week before she went none of us was supposed to see her. But one night late I managed to slip in and she was so terribly glad to talk.

Just before I left she whispered — "There's something I want to show you. You know, Ken—I'm going."

She stopped, and I tried to change the subject, but she wouldn't let me. "Don't," she said, "don't try to baby me. It doesn't help. I know all about it—they couldn't keep it from me. Besides—yesterday my feet began to change. The nails turned black—"

Again I tried to stop her but she laughed. Actually laughed! "Well, I fooled them!" she cried. "I can't stop it—but I wasn't going to let it get me down. So—see!"

With that, she put out her little, thin foot, Elsie, and never had it seemed prettier, for each nail was painted a bright, coral red!

SHE HAD GRIT

Yesterday death caught her at last.

Maybe she was only a light-hearted kid, but she had grit enough to do that. And I thought perhaps it might give some other discouraged person new strength to go on.

MARY.

It has, child. More than you know. And I'm passing it along.

Not only in memory of one "light-hearted kid", but as a salute to the thousands of others who are covering dreadful wounds with bright masks of courage.

The broken-hearted who carry on after the loss of all they loved and the wreckage of every hope —yet make of their grief a tender communion which heals every hurt soul with whom they share it.

She lies in her grave—that brave little girl—and her awful ordeal is over. But they face a crueler test daily, for they must go on for the sake of others weaker and more helpless.

And I'm wishing I could give them a finer tribute than these clumsy words, written through my tears. For in their agony and rags they, unwittingly, carry the torch of our faith.

And not by "relief money" nor "public works" will civilization be saved—but by the proud courage and manifold tenderness of their brave hearts!

'Dear Govt.' -:- By Winston Norman

Hon. Mr. Tugwell
Utopia Dept.
U. S. Govt

Dear Mr. Tugwell:

PLEASE don't let nobody see this letter, because your Alaska Pioneer Colony has blew up, & following is the reasons why it blew:

I run into a Fugitive from the Matanuska Valley today, & he says to me:

"If the Democrat Party don't come across with plenty of Shush Money, I will go on the Radio and tell the world what the FERA done to us poor Pioneers."

I asked him what they done, & he says:

"Conditions was Awful up there in Alaska. I & my family like to of died. The Govt put us in a Tent without no plug for the Radio, so we missed Amos 'n Andy 3 times running."

"Good Gracious," I says to him, "is that when you broke down & come home?"

"Oh no," he told me, "us Pioneers was brave, we stood up under them kind of Hardships, but you haven't heard the ½ of it yet."

So then he went on with their Suffering. Mr. Tugwell, & showed how the Govt wasn't building none of their houses the color they wanted, how their Wife had to go to the store for Free Rations instead of have them delivered, & there weren't no Movies for their kids.

"Us Pioneers worked a 12-hour day at swatting Mosquitos," he says, "and if it wasn't Mosquitos which pestered us, it was Govt Experts & other forms of Insect Life."

"That was awful," I says to him, "how could you of stood it?"

"It wasn't nothing but Shear Grit & Pioneer Spirit that pulled us through," he says.

So then I asked him what the FERA done that made him come home, and what was he going to tell the U. S. people of the Govt didn't pay him plenty of Shush Money?

His eye lit up with a Gleam, he says:

"The FERA turned out to be a a Viper in Sheeps Clothing, they give us a 40-acre tho the Last Straw which broke us Pioneers' back, we packed up our wife and children and took the next boat home."

A Friend Calls

By Edgar A. Guest

"Come in!" said I, and in he stepped,
And as he wandered to and fro
Into my mind the fancy leapt—
That we should never let him go.

So long we'd waited for his call,
The friend who hadn't found our door,
And now he stood within the hall
To dwell with us forevermore.

Oh, yes, he left when night came down,
But as we watched him turn the street
Upon his journey into town
Our little home seemed more complete.

We've this to say forevermore:
"This is the hook that held his hat!
Those are the books he pondered o'er!
And that's the chair wherein he sat."

'Tis strange how Time with fragrance steeps
Our little trinkets, one and all,
And memory cherishes and keeps
The friends who come on us to call.

Text For Today: "Thou wilt shew the path of life and in Thy presence is the fullness of joy."—Psalms 16:11, Suggested by the Rev. Francis W. O'Brien, First Baptist Church, Boston.
